EXPOSER OF PLOT
TO KILL WITNESS
ON STAND AT TRIAL

Robert E. Cunningham Identifies Joseph Troup
as Man He Saw Kidnap 18-Year-Old Negro.

SAYS HE WATCHED
PAIR ABDUCT YOUTH

Joseph Buschmann Signaled to Two Men in Auto, Former Cellmate
of Convict Asserts.

How O'Dell Slattery, 18-year-old Negro, was kidnaped near the city jail April 16, the day before he was to testify for the State in a robbery case, was told in Circuit Court today by Robert E. Cunningham, the State's chief witness against three men indicted for the kidnaping and murder of Slattery.
The day after he was taken away,
the Negro youth was found slain
in St. Louis County.

Cunningham said he was a cell-mate of Joseph Buschmann, against whom Slattery was to testify in the robbery case. On the witness stand at noon today, he identified Joseph Troup, the first of the three men
to go on trial as one of two men who carried out the kidnaping on directions signaled from the jail by Buschmann. The other man, he said, was Joseph Passafiume.

Troup, Passafiume and Busch-mann were indicted jointly, but obtained severances. Troup is being tried only for kidnaping because the State was unable to prove Sla-tery was murdered in the city.
Buschmann, who was found guilty of robbery in spite of the doing away of Slattery, and sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act, probably will not be tried on the kidnaping charge. Passafiume, the State indicated, will be tried after Troup.

Says He Saw Note.
Cunningham, now serving a 60-day workhouse sentence for carrying concealed weapons, said Busch-mann came back to his cell from the Municipal Courts about 4:30
p. m., April 16. Buschmann had been scheduled to go to trial that day for the $375 payroll robbery of the William G. Nicklin Tannery, in which Slattery was the State's principal witness. The case was continued to the next day.

"When Buschmann came back to the jail," recounted Cunningham,
"he showed me a note. It said:
'Don't worry. The boy will be taken care of.' It gave some directions about signaling and was signed 'Joe'."

"Buschmann tied a white handkerchief to a broomstick. Then he got up on a bench several feet away from the jail window."

Slattery, for protection of his life, had been allowed to stay at the House of Detention. From the jail window, Cunningham said, the House of Detention, south of the jail, was in plain view.

Saw Two Men in Auto.
Cunningham, continued, Cunningham, "said he was looking for Passafiume and Troup. An automobile drew up on the corner of Thirteenth street and Clark avenue and Passafiume got out. Troup stayed in."

"When the car parked, Busch-mann said, 'That's Troup and Passafiume.'"
"A few minutes before the car parked, Slattery had come out of the House of Detention and walked down Thirteenth street. Passafiume waited at a corner for him.
The Negro boy saw him, started back and then walked on again.
Buschmann pointed to the colored boy and said, 'That's my rap.' He waved the broomstick.

TRANSIT SURVEY
BILL SIGNED BY MAYOR MILLER

"In Several Days," He Announces, He Will Select the Seven Citizens on Commission of 15.

Mayor Miller signed the transportation survey bill today and "in several days" will announce his appointment of the seven citizens designated by the bill to the commission of 15 members. The bill will become effective on July 26.

The bill provides the commission with $50,000 with which to make a survey of the transportation needs of St. Louis in all its phases, including the need of subways or other form of rapid transit.
It is known that among the citizens considered for appointment to the commission are Rolla
Wells, who was receiver of the United Railways; August A. Busch,
E. J. Russell, chairman of the City
Plan Commission, and A. H. Rel-ler, North St. Louis banker.

TWO MILLIONAIRES TO ACRE
PERMITTED UNDER NEW RULE

Lake Forest, Suburb of Chicago, Bars Building Lots Less Than 20,000 Square Feet.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 26.—The question of how many millionaires should be permitted to an acre of Lake Forest's aristocratic terrain
has been settled by the suburb's council. The answer is two and a fraction; but because of a widespread antipathy to the division of millionaires into fractions, an even two is approximate enough.

The council voted last night to require persons building homes in 13,000 acres of restricted territory to have a lot no smaller than 20,000 square feet, or about half an acre. The more pliant purses may provide homes on lots containing 7500 square feet. For those who find even this too much territory, there are flats in store
buildings and elsewhere.

The council also won a victory for B. F. Affleck, president of the Chicago Union League club, who had protested against Van Wagonen's plan to build three homes to the acre across the street
from the Affleck estate.

COWGIRL BAND LEADER ON HORSE AND "DIXIE" ENLIVEN CONVENTION

HOOVER'S STATE PUTS ON SMITH DEMONSTRATION

Gavel Made From Hickory on Andrew Jackson Estate Presented to Chairman.

A source close to Gov. Smith that he would refuse to run on a platform in direct repudiation of his known views on prohibition. The die-hards among the dries are trying to write precisely that kind of platform, but with apparently small chance of success. As already written, a wet plank or planks will be put before the Resolutions Committee, the extreme dries will seek to commit the party to bone-dryness and out of the resultant trading will emerge a plank somewhere between the two. Such, today, is the prospect.

But the inevitable qualification must still be added—you never can tell about the Democrats. As Jim Reed has just proved, they are individualistic and unpredictable.

Recess to 7:30 Taken After Brief Opening Session.

The convention was called to order at 12:12 and at 12:41 recessed to 7:30 p. m.

The troublesome prohibition issue was tackled informally later in the day by the platform committee. The convention officials today forgot to go through the formality of approving the Resolutions Committee, but the members have been designated and are ready to go to work.

A side convention came together, Sam Houston Hall lay shimmering under a merciless South Texas sun. A low-arched roof lapped it, but there was some consolation and comfort in the fact that the lid did not fit down tightly. Between the upper edges of the scooped-up sides of the platter and the roof-edge, a 15-foot open space ran all around the hall, permitting circulation of air that was at least fresh and unconfined.

16,000 Seats in Hall.
The scooped-up sides which sloped from the convention hall were lined with spectators' bleachers like the bleachers of a baseball park. But most of the 16,000 seats were on a dead ground level in a vast square in the center of the platter. The alternates and many hundreds of spectators likewise were on this lower level. There were no galleries.

The west side of the square was the convention platform, arranged in the new fashion, with long rows of seats for important persons and a small speaker's stand projecting like a tiny pier in a sea of humanity, exactly from the center of the platform proper. State flags draped along one side, the rafters of the central section of the hall, above the delegates, provided a pleasing variation from the usual stiff manner of convention hall interior decorations. But the centerpiece of the many thousands of yards of varicolored flags and bunting was a 30-foot reproduction of the great seal of the United States, placed amid a cluster of American flags to form a background for the convention platform itself.

Two Bands Play for Crowd.
An hour before the convening time a small advance guard of the convention army had gathered and two bands, placed opposite each other in the north and south bleachers, played alternately. A little later another special Texas convention jazz company, which called itself "the old gray mare band," circled the wide outer aisle surrounding the delegate section, dressed as red-shirted cowboys, playing the tune for which it was named and headed by a cowgirl leader, riding astride the old gray mare herself. Horse and rider got a bigger hand from the assembling crowd than either the band or its music.

Among the first of the distinguished guests to come into the reserved section on the convention platform was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. She entered accompanied by Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Houston publisher and banker, who brought this convention to his home town. They sat down together, unnoticed by the assembling crowds.

Mrs. Wilson wore a short, straight-line Georgette gown of deep violet, shading into lighter tones in the collar and sleeves. Her waving, graying hair was almost hidden by a youthfully snug deep violet felt hat with a tiny brim. Her only jewelry was a long single strand of pearls. She carried a tiny black bag.

There was a cheer when the California delegation unfurled a large banner, announcing that California was for "Al." The New York Governor's picture was in the center of the banner. As they shouted "We are for Al," "We are for Al," the delegates from the State of Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential nominee, removed the plain standard bearing the word California to guide the delegates to their right place in the convention and put the big blue silk banner in its place.

Five minutes past the hour set for convening, all the chairs on the floor were filled and the aisles invocation. While the delegates and spectators stood and a battery of blinding photographers' lights played on the little platform group, the Bishop prayed the divine word of the convention and finished by asking that the audience join him in the Lord's prayer.

Just before noon John W. Davis, who was nominated for the presidency on the 103rd ballot at Madison Square Garden four years ago, edged his way through the crowd, assumed before the platform to his place with the New York delegation. He paused for a moment to greet Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy and a delegate from North Carolina.

A cheer went up as "Jimmy" Walker, New York's dapper Mayor, or, pushed through to the Empire State station. With him arrived Van Klee, on hand to watch developments, although not a delegate.

The first women delegates to take their places on the floor were Mrs. Alice Moss Ferris of Ladonia, Mo., in the late Champ Clark's district, and Miss Tess Neff, an alternate from St. Charles, Mo. They seated themselves under the Missouri standard surrounded by a squad of photographers.

Soon after 11:30 Franklin D. Roosevelt came in, also unrecognized by most of those about him. Learning of the arm of his tall, young son, Elliott, the floor leader of the Smith forces made his way along the front of the platform and to his seat in the New York delegation in the center. He was beaming with the joy of political activity and the fact that he could now walk with the aid of a cane and his son's arm, where four years ago he fought his way to the platform from Madison Square Garden to nominate Smith only with two crutches.

Eight years ago, on the opening day of the Democratic convention in San Francisco, it was Roosevelt, the big, husky, young man, who fought most of the New York delegation to bring the State standard into the Wilson demonstration. The San Francisco convention nomination subsequently he was stricken with infantile paralysis.

Dressed entirely in black and cooling herself with a black fan, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of the war-time Vice President, took her place with the Indiana delegation as a delegate-at-large.

Two others who were famous figures in the Wilsonian regime, Joseph P. Tumulty, the war President's private secretary, and Admiral Cary T. Grayson, personal physician to Wilson through his eight years in the White House, walked together among the delegates greeting old friends.

The band played "Dixie" and from throughout the now half-filled hall rose a brief and feeling chorus of rebel yell.

At 12:12 p. m., Chairman Shaver stepped up in front of the silver "Al" banner to hammer with his gavel the three-inch plank placed beside the speakers' stand. He had no luck. Even a real grand-daddy gavel, three times as large as the one first used by the chairman, failed for a time to get results. Then, as the head of the National Committee launched into a latus and a convention band blew "attention," the babble of talk began to die out slowly.

A bespectacled, whitebearded guest in the front row on the platform behind the chairman sought without success to help by shouting "silence" at the top of his voice. He was Nicholas St. Bell of St. Louis. He got some attention but no order. Finally Chairman Shaver got silence by bringing to the front the platform Bishop S. R. Hay of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who pronounced the opening

REED OPPOSED TO MAKING PLATFORM FIT SMITH VIEWS

Senator and Some of Dries to Insist That "Party, Not Candidate, Must Write Planks."

By CURTIS A. BETTS, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—An insistence that the Democratic national platform shall be written without attempting to reconcile it to the views of Gov. Smith of New York or the wets will be made by Senator Reed and the delegations from supposedly dry states.

A statement developed from conferences of Reed with his advisers and conferences of dry leaders. It is: "The party, not the candidate, must write the platform."

Reed had a long conference with his close associates last night. The entire situation was canvassed and the platform was discussed. The reports of scouts soliciting support for Reed in other delegations that Missouri did not have very cheering information and the chances of Reed winning support for the nomination through a leadership in a coalition with the dries were scattered anti-Smith delegates seemed farther away than ever.

There was discussion of platform making plans in line with reports which have been current for several days that the wets would be attempting to write a plank so dry that Smith, if nominated, could not consistently run on it. There was such blunt outline in the Reed conference last night, but it was discussed in that sort of temper.

While Reed has given no public expression of the words he believes should be used in discussing prohibition in the platform, some of those who heard him privately last night said that he believed the platform should follow in a general way the views he expressed in a formal statement Sunday.

The Senator has picked Col. Bennett Clark of St. Louis to represent Missouri on the platform committee and it will be Clark's job to make the fight in the committee for the sort of a platform the wets want to lead a fight on the floor of the convention.

Just as the convention was opening, Mrs. Alfred E. Smith entered by a side door almost unnoticed and was escorted to a front box on the left, about half way back. She was wearing an aqua blue dress with a big black hat, with straw trim. She fanned herself violently with a large saffron colored fan.

She sat between her secretary, Miss Rose Fredrick, who wore a printed crepe, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. John J. Glynn of Ladonia, Mo., in the late Champ Clark's district, and Miss Tess Neff, an alternate from St. Charles, Mo. They seated themselves under the Missouri standard surrounded by a squad of photographers.

Charles A. Greathouse of Indiana, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, then read the call for the convention. The crowd finally had settled down, awaiting the welcoming address by Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe of Houston.

The Mayor was given a big hand as he was introduced by Chairman Shaver. Holcombe said that for him to say a word of welcome would be superfluous as the city had shown its hospitality by building the great convention hall for the convention.

"We feel that the greatest honor has been bestowed upon us," the Mayor said. "I am satisfied that in Houston the greatest piece of history in recent years will be made and that is that the next president of the United States will be nominated."

The convention gavel, fashioned from hickory grown on the Andrew Jackson estate in Tennessee, was presented to Chairman Shaver by Representative Joseph W. Byrns. In making the presentation he called attention to the fact that it was the 100th anniversary of the nomination and election of Jackson to the presidency.

"The Ladies' Hermitage Association of Nashville, which cares for the home and tomb of this old warrior Democrat," the Congressman told the convention in a message read by a clerk, "presents this gavel made from hickory grown on the estate of the Hermitage to the national Democratic convention, assembled at Houston, Tex., with the hope and expectation that Democracy, which stands for honest government and the rule of the people, will prevail this year as it did 100 years ago, under the leadership of that great Democratic chieftain."

C. C. Dickinson of Missouri was recognized by Shaver to read the convention recess until 7:30 p. m. and the motion prevailed, the convention quitting after being in session only 29 minutes and without naming its standing committees, such as the one on Platform, Credentials and Rules.

Smith's First Ballot Strength. As it shaped up today, with the balloting for a presidential nominee still 48 hours away, the first ballot votes which have been announced as committed to Smith, either through instructions or definite pledges given by individual delegates or by authorized spokesmen, totaled 657 or 46 1-2

Three Widely Differing Views On Prohibition Plank; Fight Likely on Convention Floor

Ultra Dries Want Amendment Named, Wets Seek Modification, Harmonizers at Work; Delay in Framing Platform.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Both wets and dries in the Democratic National convention tightened up their lines today in preparation for a fight tomorrow within the Resolutions Committee on the prohibition plank.

Convention harmonizers still are seeking to have the row settled behind the closed doors of the platform committee room, but such militant leaders of the Southland as Josephus Daniels, North Carolina publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, and Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, are ready to throw the issue into the convention itself unless their demands are met.

Daniels and his co-workers insist that the plank must name the Eighteenth amendment and pledge the party to "sacredly enforce it." Apparently the supporters of Gov. Alfred E. Smith are disinclined to that far and they believe they have the votes in the convention to put over a straight law enforcement plank if they should decide upon that course.

Members of the dries will be countered before the committee tomorrow with a plank for modification of the Volstead act, to be offered by George E. Brennan, National Committeeman for Illinois, and a Smith candidate in the convention, New York, Maryland and New Jersey are expected to support that plank, although not even the most optimistic of the wets entertain any idea that it can be put over.

Dries in Conference.
After the first session of the national convention, at which the officials failed to have the Resolutions Committee appointed, so it could go to work today, the dries resumed their conferences for the purpose of agreeing upon the platform form of the plank upon which they will concentrate.

Various delegates from the South are instructed by their state conventions to present dry planks and the leaders now are seeking to weld all of these proposals into one, taking the best out of each declaration by the state conventions in Virginia, North Carolina, Texas and Oklahoma.

The Smith supporters appear to be little concerned about the trend the prohibition fight has taken, as they agree with Senator Edwards of New Jersey, a member of the Resolutions Committee, that Smith will be his own prohibition plank. They say it is well known that the Governor stands for law enforcement, but personally thinks the Volstead act should be amended.

Reports current during the day that the wets and dries had got together on a plank and that the prohibition controversy was settled were promptly denied by Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, who will be chairman of the platform makers. Denial also was made by the dry leaders.

Tentative Draft Completed.
A tentative draft of this as well as many other planks has been completed by the platform committee and others who have been laboring with him for a week on the party declaration, which the chairman, at least, wants to hold down within some bounds of brevity, with the hope that the effort will be more widely read than has been the case in the past when the platform filled a whole page of newspaper type.

Failure of convention officials to have the Resolutions Committee appointed at the opening session probably will mean a day's delay in presenting the platform to the convention. It had been the intention to hold the necessary public hearings during the afternoon and the early night and then to close the doors so the committee could get down to its serious work.

Since the committee was not formally constituted at the opening session the committee will be organized well into tomorrow, with the prospect that the party declaration will not be ready to be reported to the convention until Thursday.

Unable to compose their views in conferences, each of three widely differing groups is determined to fight to the end.

Lined up under dry banners were the Dan Moody and Josephus Daniels, a combined voting bloc of Virginia, a former Secretary of the Treasury under Wilson, and a host of other leaders.

Wets Seek Modification.
At the other extreme the wets, insisting on a plank declaring in favor of some modification of the prohibition laws are found chiefly under the standard raised by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, a champion of state's rights, who has taken the position that the 48 states should be given the power to settle the prohibition question for themselves.

Between these two extremes is the far larger group of self-styled conservatives, intent upon the adoption of a plank declaring for rigid enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition statute, but at the same time a plank that would not commit the party to an extreme position on prohibition.

Senator Edwards of New Jersey, an ardent wet, said the issue should be fought out behind the closed doors of the resolutions committee and not permitted to reach the convention floor.

Fight on Floor Likely.

The North Carolina delegation has approved the bone-dry plank adopted recently by its State convention and instructed former Secretary Daniels, its representative on the Platform Committee, to fight for its adoption by the committee, and failing in that to submit a minority report to the convention. Georgia and Texas also have gone on record for strong planks while Senator Glass is prepared to present the Virginia plank for enforcement of the prohibition amendment and assailing the Republican administration for tax enforcement of the dry laws.

Several party leaders express the view that should the dries present a minority report to the convention, the wets also will come in with their proposal for modification so that the convention floor fight would be over the very extremes on the question with little doubt that the convention would go on record by a large majority against any changes in the prohibition law.

Dries Active at Houston.
Under the leadership of representatives of 31 national dry organizations, the advocates of prohibition have held many meetings, several of them prayer services at which the leaders of their cause urged them to stand steadfast to the end.

White badges inscribed with the brief declaration: "For Dry Candidacy and Platform," are plentifully displayed in Houston. Wets also have been busy. Under the leadership of William H. Stayton, chairman of the board of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the opponents of Volsteadism early in the proceedings initiated a move in behalf of a plank proposing repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and have announced that the fight was one to a finish.

General Farm Plank Likely.

While a few individual delegates favored a farm relief declaration indorsing at least the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill with its equalization fee, the general opinion around convention headquarters was that the agricultural plank would be general in character with the party pledged to use every endeavor to find a solution of this problem.

This declaration also would involve the tariff on which there will be a general pronouncement in favor of more equitable imposts and condemning the present Republican tariff act as favoring certain industries to the detriment of others, particularly the agricultural industry.

A strong plank on taxation is in the making, with those drafting it determined to assail the taxation policies of the Republican administration and denouncing the Mellon tax program as not based upon the fundamental principle of ability to pay.

While prohibition and farm relief held the center of attention, serious study was being given by the platform builders to a number of other subjects. Corruption is to be emphasized as the dominant issue of the campaign. It is expected that this plank will review the oil lease scandals under the Harding administration and pledge the Democratic party to clean government.

Foreign Policy Plank.
The Republican administration's foreign policy will be assailed by the Democratic platform, which is expected to be probably the shortest one within recent years, perhaps less than 6000 words in all, as compared with the usual 10,000 words or more.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26. FOLLOWING is the opening day's program of the Democratic National Convention: Music from 11 a. m. until noon.

Recess until 7:30 p. m., when keynote speech will be made by Claude G. Bowers.

power in the Federal authorities and Federal invasion of the right of local self-government reserved to the states is contrary to the spirit of our institutions and destructive of the liberties of our people.

The eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act constitute a departure from this principle. As long as the eighteenth amendment is part of the Constitution, we recognize that it should be upheld and restored to its rightful position among the profitable occupations of a free, enlightened and progressive people."

"We, therefore, believe that appropriate steps should be taken by Congress to have prohibition turned back to the states, so that each State, within constitutional limitations and under the principles of local option and home rule, may have the opportunity of settling it in accordance with the will of its own people; and in this connection, we favor also the enactment by Congress of such measures as may be necessary to prevent shipment into any State which might contravene the expressed will of the people of that State."

"I have reason to believe that this is a good plank," said the speaker, "for we have been elected Governor on three times."

Missourians Write Farm Plank; Urge Smith Pledge on Relief.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—The Missouri delegation to the Democratic national convention today urged upon the New York delegation that Gov. Smith, if nominated for the presidency, pledge himself in his message to the convention to approve any measure for farm relief which Congress might pass.

The Missourians believe that, if Smith, as his very first opportunity, would make a strong appeal to the farmers, he would carry Missouri, but that, if Congress might pass such a declaration until the campaign was well under way, it would not be nearly as effective.

Following approval of a proposed McNary-Haugen plank by the Democratic members of Congress from Missouri, with the exception of Congressman Cochran of St. Louis, representatives of the delegation communicated their views to the New York leaders with the request that they be passed on to Gov. Smith.

The Congressmen yesterday afternoon appointed a committee of the delegation, consisting of Congressmen Logan of the Second District, Fulbright of the Fourteenth and Cannon of the Ninth, and Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, the Democratic nominee for the governorship in 1924, to draw an agricultural plank. They produced one virtually identical to the McNary-Haugen bill. It was presented to the Platform Committee by Bennett C. Clark, the Missouri member.

After an introductory discussion of agricultural problems and President Coolidge's two veto farm bills, the proposed plank reads:

"The Democratic party pledges itself to enact without delay legislation that will place agriculture on an equality with other industries and give to agriculture at the council table around the business and economic policy of the nation are determined."

"In the present nation-wide agricultural emergency, the Democratic party favors the prompt enactment by Congress of legislation based on the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill recently vetoed by a Republican President; and the nominee of this convention, elected, will not veto such legislation, but will give it his earnest approval. And the Democratic party will supplement this legislation with such other well considered measures as may be necessary to fully rehabilitate agriculture and restore it to its rightful position among the profitable occupations of a free, enlightened and progressive people."

plained. "I just asked him about the family and he told me we were all well, and then he told me how we were all feeling. I told him we all felt fine." "Indeed, it was nice to talk to him again."

About the proffered slip of paper, Mrs. Smith almost before she answered no, she would not ride; no, she never had, and, she was sure she never would.

Many Houston natives and visitors called to pay their respects to the Governor's wife. Among the early morning visitors were Mrs. J. P. Maher of a Houston Science Church and the Rev. Joseph H. Steinbrunner of St. Joseph's Church in Cincinnati. Mrs. Smith's secretary asked that she be excused from the convention.

Mrs. Smith professed ignorance of any acceptance in her behalf of any invitations extended, though the local arrangements committee insists that she is to attend reception in her honor.

Flowers From New York.
Flowers from Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Moskowitz of New York, last of stay-at-home Smith supporters, came to Mrs. Smith in the form of a corsage of lilies of the valley.

Alfred J., a New York lawyer and his wife, arrived in Houston this morning and called to meet her immediately. The smiling, looking like a college student despite his two children, called to see his mother's apartment to ask if she was standing the Texas test.

Mrs. Smith made her first convention appearance in an early two-piece frock. The short jacket opened down the front, was of a slightly darker shade of tan than the lace skirt and the plain waist. She wore tan shoes and a large black hat with a two-piece crown. The crown was of black velvet, relieved by a single rhinestone ornament in the front. She carried a large majenta fan.

He declined to say how much he subscribed for, but pointed out that this demonstrated clearly his confidence in the business. Brown said he understood Nichols had subscribed for more than $100,000 and his associates for a considerable part of the remainder.

Included in the customers' accounts receivable are some pledged with the banks and $210,000 for advances against customers' accounts sold, which, according to Brown, was obtained from finance companies. While some of the shoes held in bond for the banks are being realized, Brown said, such sales realize cash for the banks and not the company. In addition the company is selling a large quantity of its own shoes daily, reducing its inventory to a sounder basis.

An intensive campaign to sell stock of the Missouri corporation was conducted early this year. Nichols said that it brought in $25,000 cash and the notes totaling $300,556.

The company has $1,400,000 in unshipped orders on its books. Nichols said that is counted on as material factor in helping it out of its present straits. Included in the contract obtained from the War department last January for $5,442 pairs of army shoes at $4.09 a pair, the department telegraphed yesterday an extension of time for filling this order.

Holders of Merchandising Claims Object to Security Intended to Secure Those of Banks.

The $2,000,000 Stenzies Shoe Co., which is trying to stave off receivership or bankruptcy through amicable agreement with merchandise and banking creditors holding claims of $860,000, had $1830 cash on hand on April 30, according to an accountant's report made public today by Samuel D. Nichols, president of the company.

Nichols declined to say how much cash was on hand today, but Foster H. Brown, attorney for the St. Louis Association of Credit Men, and a member of the Merchandise Creditors' Committee, told the Post-Dispatch it was stated at a creditors' meeting last week that there was about $500.

Stockholders of the manufacturing Stenzies Shoe Co., a Wisconsin corporation with eight factories and headquarters here, and a Missouri holding corporation of the same name, at a special joint meeting yesterday received the accountant's report and approved a plan proposed by Nichols, which he thinks will pull the business through without trouble. It was announced by Miss L. B. Wehner, secretary. She added that stockholders voted confidence in Nichols, there being 47 persons present, representing 80 per cent of the Wisconsin corporation stock and 77 per cent of the Missouri corporation.

How Debts Are Divided.
The business owes merchandise creditors approximately $525,000 and owes banks about $325,000, including $142,000 to the old Franklin Bank and the old American Trust Co., now merged as the Franklin-American Trust Co., St. Louis, $100,000; Murray Hill Trust Co., New York, $83,000, according to Brown.

Nichols' plan is to pay off the creditors with debenture bonds, 20 per cent of which would mature in two years, 20 per cent in three years, 20 per cent in four years and 40 per cent in five years, and to raise $75,000 among his acquaintances, not by actual sale of the company's plant, but by a loan of cash to be furnished by creditor banks.

The Creditors' Committee, comprising Brown, J. Sydney Salkey, an attorney, and Louis A. Simon of the Greenback Loan Co., Chicago, met with J. L. Ford Jr., president of the Franklin-American Trust Co., yesterday. Brown, who asserted that the creditors still were far from agreement, said that the company's plan was that the banks, which have about $145,000 of their present indebtedness secured, want the unsecured balance—which would be about $380,000 under Nichols' plan—paid in cash.

The plan under that condition, Brown explained, but this does not seem satisfactory to the merchandise creditors.

The essential security left for the merchandise creditors, Brown said, would amount to the integrity of the proposition. Brown declared that the creditors should be best to avoid precipitating trouble for the company and would like to see it pull through.

The $2,000,000 Menzies Shoe Co., which is trying to stave off receivership of bankruptcy through amicable agreement with merchandise and banking creditors holding claims of $860,000, had $1830 cash on hand on April 30, according to an accountant's report made public today by Samuel D. NEW YORK, June 26.—Back of a large bank window overlooking lower Broadway, in which are displayed sovereigns, doubloons, guilders and other foreign money, sits an elderly man at a large desk counting coins.

But his fingers are not those of a grasping miser, nor do his eyes reflect the greed of the money changer, for that fraction of each coin that he gains through transactions in foreign exchange is to be passed on to others, because, he explains, they had confidence in him.

Losses Six Million.

Losses exceeded $6,000,000. Most of the creditors had little hope of salvage. Zimmerman had just rounded out his three-score years and 16 and nothing seemed more likely than that he should be forced into retirement. But Leopold Zimmerman thought only of the necessity that some experienced member of the firm should justify the confidence of its clients.

He worked hours daily with the creditors to reclaim as much as possible. He got permission from the court to reopen his office under the old firm name. And during the past year he has voluntarily repaid creditors some $100,000 of his personal earnings from the new firm.

Police Intercept Message From Man Suspected of Part in Holdup.

Peter Adamie, 1523 Hickory street, sought by the police as the fourth man in the holdup of two Walter Freund Bread Co. employees last Friday, was arrested yesterday at Shamrock, Tex., as the result of a plan laid for his capture by Police Captain Kirk.

A few hours after the holdup, Adamie's father, Joseph, a pool hall proprietor, died, and Kirk ordered the house watched, believing the son would return. Instead, he sent a telegram yesterday from Shamrock telling his family he was stranded and needed $10.

Kirk's men intercepted the wire, sent a message back to Adamie and instructed the Shamrock police to arrest the man who called for it. Adamie waived extradition. He was named by Edward Gerwitz, confessed participant in the robbery, as one of the holdup men, and as the man who took away the checks stolen in the robbery, intending to return them.

The cash, $876, was recovered in Gerwitz's home at 1323 Dillon street. Two other men arrested within six hours after the robbery—Arthur Schmelt and Julius Kruck—have also admitted participation in it.

OPEN VERDICT IN GANG MURDER; 4 SUSPECTS HELD

Witnesses at Inquest Over Vincent Barbera Fail to Give Evidence as to Slayings.

THEIR STOCK ANSWER IS "I DON'T KNOW"

Sister Testifies Brother Left Home After He Had Been Indicted for Palazzolo Murder.

A hundred questions were asked of witnesses at the coroner's inquest today in the case of Vincent Barbera, gangster shot and killed Sunday night as he was leaving a wedding party at Jeffia Hall.

"I don't know," was the stock answer to most of the queries. The discreet silence customary in gang killings prevailed, and finally came the little verdict in such cases—"Homicide at the hands of parties unknown." Just another unsolved crime.

Mary Barbera, sister of the slain man, was the first member of the family to testify, a dark, slender young woman with pale face and tear-swollen eyes. Her black mourning ensemble was complete even to a veil. She didn't have much to say.

Did Not See Slayings.

With her parents, her three sisters and her little brother Tony she had been to Jeffia Hall, at Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, for the celebration that followed the marriage of their friends, Sora Mantia and Angie Shira. Vincent Barbera came later. The party broke up at midnight, as the band played "Home, Sweet Home." Vincent escorted his family to a taxicab outside and then walked to his own Chrysler brougham, parked a block east of the hall. As Vincent started to enter his car, she was fired and he fell, fatally wounded. Women screamed. Men and boys ran to the scene. Vincent was taken in his own car to city hospital, where he died four hours later without naming his slayers.

In response to questions, Miss Barbera and two other witnesses, her fiancé, Tony Bono, and her cousin, Joe Avola, testified they did not see the slayings; did not know Vincent Barbera was in the neighborhood; knew of no troubles in which he might be involved. They admitted knowing he was 22 years old, called himself a first lieutenant and lived with Avola at 1531 Hogan street.

"He was my mother's old heart," declared Mary Barbera, who explained her mother was at home at 1518 Carr street, prosecuted by the state.

Always Arguments at Home.

How was it, inquired Assistant Circuit Attorney Lemen and Deputy Coroner Dever, that young Barbera lived apart from his parents?

"You know how it is, there were always arguments in the home," answered Miss Barbera.

"Did he leave home on account of his associates or trouble?"

"Oh, he had a little argument with his father and mother," was the explanation offered by Cousin Joe Avola. Avola said Barbera left home after he had been indicted for the murder of Alphonse Palazzolo, gang leader and extortionist. The indictments later were nolle prossed, after one defendant, Ralph Calico, was tried and acquitted in what Circuit Attorney Siderer had asserted was his strongest case.

Doesn't Know Who Shot Cousin.

Avola was quite sure he didn't know who shot his cousin.

"Would you say so if you did know?" he was asked.

"I can't," he replied faintly. It developed that the Barbera family name really is Tedeschi, the name of Barbera having been adopted 20 years ago, when the elder Tedeschi bought what was then known as "Barbera's grocery."

That was about the only development at the inquest. Police testified they had found no witnesses who could describe the five men who escaped after shooting Barbera with a sub-machine gun.

However, four members of the so-called "Fresina gang," are being investigated, including Camille Fresina, who was shot Jan. 19, 1935, in a holdup in which Dominick Cataldo and Tony DiPranelli, indicted with Barbera for the Palazzolo murder, were killed.

Fresina and the other prisoners deny knowledge of the Barbera slaying. In William up the four men, police seized three shotguns from two houses and found a large suit at another place.

FOUNDERS BUY BACK MOLONEY ELECTRIC FIRM

Thomas O. Moloney and James J. Mullen Said to Have Paid More Than $4,000,000.

BROKERS RECENTLY ACQUIRED CONTROL

In 1925 Swiss Company Obtained Majority of Stock and Last April Old Officers Quit.

Two men, who started the manufacture of electric transformers in a tiny building at 5 North Twelfth boulevard 31 years ago and saw it grow to large proportions, becoming a part of an international factory chain in 1925, have just bought back that business, the Moloney Electric Co., for a price understood to exceed $4,000,000.

They are Thomas O. Moloney of 6309 Pershing avenue and James J. Mullen of 1277 Lindell drive. Their establishment now occupies a large new plant at 3200 Kingshighway Northwest, with a branch at 1149 South Seventh boulevard, but it sticks to the same staple line with which they started—transformers.

Moloney got a job in the electrical department of the Laclede Gas Light Co. in 1920, when electric power was just making itself felt as an industrial force. He studied text books about it. Mullen, who worked in the same department, joined him in starting their little business in 1927. It prospered, and in 1932 they incorporated it for $700,000, half in common and half in preferred stock. They remained as the sole officers, but eventually investors obtained a majority of the securities. They are now realizing a dream of controlling the business themselves. Virtually all of the stock they retained out of the deal was sold at a profit of $200 per cent stock dividend on the common.

Resignation Announced.

In November, 1935, Brown, Boveri & Co. of Switzerland, which had decided to extend its operations to Europe to the United States, bought Moloney Electric through the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation of New York. It obtained a large majority of the outstanding stock at that time, and all that stock was reported in the neighborhood of $4,000,000.

Last April it was announced that Moloney and Mullen had resigned, effectively leaving the company dead and vice president, respectively, since they had retained no financial interest, but had agreed to remain until the business was well organized under the new ownership. They said they felt this deal was consummated, and they desired to look after their investments in other concerns, chiefly public utilities.

At the time, about the middle of May, Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., St. Louis brokers, negotiated with American Brown Boveri for the purchase of Moloney Electric. Arnold G. Stifel, who said on June 15, when it was announced that the deal was consummated, that his firm was buying on its own account, reiterated today that such was the case, but explained that the acquisition by Moloney and Mullen was a subsequent development. Between them, he said, the two men now have a controlling interest, but details of the transaction were not made public.

The St. Louis brokers had purchased outright the 38,500 shares of no par-value common stock of Moloney Electric from American Brown Boveri, a security which was not listed on the exchange. Moloney Electric, a New York corporation now, is being reorganized as a Delaware corporation. Announcement of the sale to Moloney and Mullen was made by Stifel yesterday afternoon, following ratification by American Brown Boveri stockholders at New York of the prior sale to Stifel, Nicolaus.

Financial Structure.

The $1,000,000 in Moloney Electric preferred stock outstanding is to be called at 105, approximately its market price. That part of the $500,000 in serial real estate mortgage bonds of the subsidiary Moloney Realty Co. still outstanding also will be called at 105, about the market price. The latter corporation, stock of which is owned by Moloney Electric, will be merged with the parent concern; it has held title to the new plant, which has 300,000 square feet of floor space.

LOUISIANA CONTEST OVER VOTES REFERRED

Senator Glass of Virginia Leads Fight Against Seating Smith Delegation.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Six Smith-instructed delegates to the Democratic National Convention yesterday but another contest—one from Louisiana involving 20 votes claimed by Smith—was referred to the convention's Credentials Committee without recommendation.

The Louisiana fight was the most spectacular of the four contests brought before the committee and given up by the Smith delegation. It was a fight over Smith's candidacy an opportunity to argue against each other.

One of those who took a leading part in the fight against seating the Smith delegates from Louisiana was Senator Carter Glass, national committeeman from Virginia, who has been an avowed opponent of Smith. He characterized the selection of the regular state from the Delta State by Gov. Long and Senators Broussard and Handsett as "fraudulent and by a usurpation of power."

In the opinion of many committee members who heard him, Senator Glass virtually secured the ultimate nomination of Smith when he spoke of the selection of the 20 Smith delegates.

"The man who is to be nominated for President by a convention," he said, "does not need your 20 votes and I venture to say that he does not want your 20 tainted votes."

"Even were I a friend of the man who will be nominated, I would take the same position on this question that I now take."

The controversy in Louisiana is over the action of the State Central Committee in selecting 20 delegates and 20 alternates to the convention without calling a state convention as had been the custom, the testimony brought out, for more than 40 years.

The contest was brought under the leadership of Mrs. James M. Thomson, wife of the publisher of the New Orleans Item, a daughter of the late Champ Clark, whom Senator Reed supported for President, and a sister of one of the present Reed lieutenants. She was supported by Harry Gamble of New Orleans and Fred Claiborne of New Roads.

The regular delegation, which under the unit rule, will vote for Smith, put its position before the committee through Col. Robert Ewing, national committeeman-elect.

Under the Louisiana law, the testimony disclosed, the State Central Committee is given certain rural powers with respect to national affairs. The law does not specifically provide for the selection of national convention delegates but the testimony showed that for many years they were selected by a state convention. The Ewing group argued that the Central Committee was wholly within its rights in itself naming the delegates. The opposing group charged fraud because custom had been ignored.

Story of Nobile's Rescue Told by Rescuer's Aids

General Wept on Leaving His Men—Had Long Beard, Was Haggard and Worn From Month's Hardships.

By the Associated Press.

KINGS BAY, June 26.—Details of the rescue of Gen. Umberto Nobile, who was rescued off his ice floe by Lieut. Lundborg, Swedish flyer, were told to an Associated Press correspondent who traveled to Virgo Bay, the base of the flyers' searching expedition.

Sheltered within the bay was the Citta di Milano and close by was the plane of Maj. Maddalena.

Tell of Nobile's Rescue.

The Swedish supply ship Tanja was near the coast and near it were two Swedish planes. In addition to a second Italian plane. The correspondent was cordially received aboard the Tanja by the Swedish aviators, who told how Nobile was rescued.

On Saturday evening Capt. Torbjorn, leader of the Swedish expedition, in his big hydro-airplane, Lieut. Lundborg, in a small light Fokker equipped with skis, and Lieut. Jacobson in motor plane, started on an expedition to pick up Nobile and Natale Cecconi, the motor chief, whose leg had been broken, and Prof. F. Behounek, Czechoslovakian meteorologist, also injured when the Italia crashed against the ice May 26.

The planes landed near Hiloport Strait, where they renewed their gasoline supply, and then flew directly to the Nobile camp, guided by wireless.

From the air Lieut. Lundborg discovered a landing place on the ice, measuring 200 by 200 yards, and on this plain made a skillful land.

ing close to the little red tent in which the Nobile party has been living for the last month.

The lieutenant spent one hour on the ice. Nobile embraced him and then took leave of his five companions with whom he had shared 30 days of privation and hardships. Meanwhile the two other Swedish machines circled over the camp. Nobile was deeply touched and wept when he had to leave his companions.

General Has Long Black Beard.

After the month on the ice the General had a long, black beard and his cheeks were hollow, while he was incapacitated by his broken leg.

Having saved Nobile, Lundborg desired to start out again to rescue the rest of the party. He intended to bring the Italians one by one to the base ship Quest, but on his second landing, close to the Nobile camp, his plane turned over and his skills were smashed. He, however, was not hurt.

During the flights to the Nobile camp, the Swedish aviators observed a dog team headed in its direction. The plane circled over the party and learned that the Malmgren group was not there.

While circling over the Nobile camp the flyers observed many tracks indicating that there were bears in the neighborhood, and later learned that the marooned men had succeeded in shooting several bears for provisions.

(The above dispatch contains no mention of the reported rescue of Natale Cecconi, the motor chief. No confirmation of this rescue has been received.)

HEAVY FOG DELAYS RESCUE OF REST OF NOBILE PARTY

Attempt to Be Made to Drop Spare Parts to Flyer Marooned With Four After Crash on Floe.

Copyright 1935, by the Associated Press.

VIRGO BAY, Spitzbergen, June 26 (By way of Kings Bay).—Baffled by heavy fog, rescue parties at Virgo Bay today were awaiting opportunity to rescue the five remaining members of the Nobile party stranded off Northeast Land and Lieut. E. Lundborg, Swedish flyer, marooned with them, after taking off Gen. Nobile Saturday.

The big Italian S-55 plane, under command of Maj. Maddalena, and the Marina II plane, meanwhile will start east as soon as possible in search for the seven men who drifted off in the wrecked balloon.

Hope of saving the three men headed by Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist, who started for land on foot almost a month ago, is considered very small.

Nobile is resting aboard the base ship Citta di Milano here and is being kept as free as possible from worry. Capt. Romagnoli of the Citta di Milano permitted no one to interview Nobile.

Ice conditions are growing better for ships, and next week the expedition's base will be moved eastward to Hiloport Strait, or perhaps even farther east or north. This would place the flyers within 150 miles of Foyne Island and much closer to the four stranded men.

Efforts will be made as soon as possible to drop spare parts to Lundborg. He particularly needs skills to replace those which were smashed when his plane landed the second time at the Nobile camp Sunday. He hopes to be able to refit the plane for a return hop.

The rescue party at Virgo Bay now fears that it will be impossible to save the rest of Nobile's party and Lundborg before three or four weeks. The group has provisions for at least a month and more food can be dropped from airplanes if necessary.

The Italian plane Marina, which has arrived in Tromsø, will remain there until tomorrow and then will proceed to Spitzbergen to take up the search for Roald Amundsen, missing Norwegian explorer. Ren. Guilbaud, commander of the French hydro-airplane which dropped out of sight June 18, and their four companions.

Ice blocked the attempts of other flyers to search for Roald Amundsen. Lief Dietrichsen and four others missing since they started northward from Tromsø, Norway, on June 18, in a French seaplane.

Indictments against Schneider, Buschman and Taylor.

Buschman and Schneider, Berne asserted, planned the robbery and Troup and a man, partially paid, to look over the tannery office before the robbery to determine that Nicklin was there.

EXPOSER OF PLOT TO KILL WITNESS ON STAND AT TRIAL

Buschman was one of several robbers who held him up Aug. 13, 1927, in the tannery office at 409 South Second street.

Slattery was "pony boy" in the blacksmith shop of John Berne in rear of the tannery. He had said the robbery was planned in the blacksmith shop, and had identified Buschman, Elmer Schneider and Edward Taylor as among the robbers. Schneider and Taylor, also ex-convicts, were tried and sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal statute. A transcript of Slattery's testimony, a preliminary hearing was used in the trials of Schneider and Buschman last April after the Negro witness had been slain.

The defense indicated Troup will offer an alibi.

Testifying this afternoon for the State, Berne, who is serving a five-year penitentiary sentence for another robbery, declared Troup was one of four robbers who got the tannery payroll. He was placed on the stand to establish a motive for Troup's participation in the kidnapping. Slattery had not mentioned Troup as one of the robbers and he was not named in the joint

TAMMANY TRAINS DRAW CROWDS ON WAY TO HOUSTON

Big Turnouts in Towns
Were Most Curious to See Mrs. Al Smith, Who Was Not Aboard.

GAY WELCOME AT CONVENTION CITY

Manhattan Democratic Leaders Do Some Electioneering for Gov. Smith
Along the Route.

By DUDLEY NICHOLS,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—A dignified but none the less hil-larious Tammany arrived here yesterday afternoon and went to the Rice Hotel to take over the mearnane floor where posters of Gov.
Smith hang on every wall.

All Houston turned out to give the arriving New Yorkers a welcome, and the Old Gray Mare band, tricked out in red bandanas and cowboys' hats, let loose with "Tammamee, Tammamee." The Tammany trains got welcomes all along the line, clear across eight states, and the Manhattan Democratic leaders did some electioneering
for Gov. Smith in towns and cities along the line where the citizenry turned out in force.
Among these impromptu speakers from the tail-end of the Tammany trains were Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Congressman John O'Connor and George Gordon Battle.

Crowds Inquire for Mrs. Smith.
The big turnout in the Southeastern towns were most curious to see Mayor James J. Walker and Mrs. Smith. The Mayor had his own car on another train and Mrs. Smith traveled with members of her family, excepting Emily, in W. F. Kennedy's private car.
If the Southern Democracy expected to see Tammany trains stroking across the fields with bright banners flying and bands
tooting they were greatly disappointed. By tacit but unanimous agreement the hehira here was conducted with the utmost quiet and decorum.

There were cards reading "New York Tammany Special" in the train windows leaving New York,
but there were removed after the trip got under way Saturday afternoon and there was nothing thereafter to distinguish the New Yorkers except their gayeries whenever the train pulled up. The specials were well enough advertised, however, so that the farmers and townpeople along the way knew what time to expect the Tammanys.
This must account for various farmers who came running from barnyards when the train whistle
hooted in the distance, and lifted up live roosters as emblems of the emblem under which they were going to put their X next November.
Whenever the train stopped to change engines or take on water
the townspeople surged up to inquire about "Mrs. Alfred E. Smith."
The housewives showed the greatest curiosity to get a glimpse of the Governor's wife and were disappointed when they learned she was not on the Tammany train.

Popular Bluff, Mo., Turns Out.
The Tammanys left Jersey
City Saturday evening and crossed the Alleghenies during the night.
Sunday found them in Indiana and crossing Illinois and into Missouri.
Sunday night at Poplar Bluff, Mo., they met their first big welcoming crowd. All of Poplar Bluff, apparently, had turned out and Justice Mahoney, finding the Missourians expected somebody to speak, stepped out on the platform of the observation car and told them something about Gov. Smith.

"Remember that New York's normally a Republican state," he said, "and remember that Gov.
Smith has had four years in this Republican State. That's the kind of man we're going down to nominate at Houston."

"Three cheers for Al Smith," called an excited Missourian, jumping up on the step of the car
and Poplar Bluff let loose a cheer that must have been heard over in Oklahoma.

At Newport, Ark., the townspeople were asking about Mrs. Smith again. During the hours of the night the train skirted the Arkansas River, which was in flood, and the yellow water partly concealed the tracks. But the Tammany train kept drumming on into the Southwest.

There were nine coaches in the train, which left from Pennsylvania Station in New York, and the first of these was a club car which was immediately called "Smith Borough."

Texans Extend Welcome.

When the Tammany train reached Palestine, Tex., yesterday and found all the democracy of the town turned out en masse to greet the New Yorkers, pretty girls hurried along the length of the train and distributed bouquets. Large bunches of magnolia blossoms were handed through the windows and the diner soon looked like a flor-ist's show window.

Congressman O'Connor and Battle made impromptu speeches at Palestine in praise of Gov. Smith and found the populace ready to cheer for Smith as if he had been a native son.

The next stop in Texas was Trinity. The trainman, a big, raw-boned man of slow speech, waved to people along the track on the station platform and called them
by name.
"I'm the only anti-Klunk in this here town," he allowed. "Gosh,
I got a brown derby, too. This here is strong Ku Klux territory,
and a Roman Catholic ain't none too welcome in this neck of the woods. But they'll vote for Al Smith, all right."

The cheering was more restrained along the platform in Trinity. The Tammanys jumped down off the steps for a breathing spell and passed the time of day
with the townspeople and soon
were on thick terms with them.
There was plenty of spontaneous
cheering as the train pulled out,
and the Tammany crowds waved
till the train was round the curve.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

No Trashy Affair.
IN FACT, the whole scene was permeated by an atmosphere of confidence and prosperity most remarkable in a Democratic convention. A visitor from Mars would never suspect this was a convention of the poor man's political party. Most of the male delegates are heavy and serious-looking, as if accustomed to handling important money. And the women seem to know a French label when they see it in hat or frock. Even the state standards are substantial and well made. This is no trashy affair. It looks as if Al Smith had made the party respectable.

View Unobstructed.
THE vast arena, where the delegates sit in tiered ranks behind their standards, is over-spread by one tremendous arch of roof, so that their view of the stage is unobstructed by a single pillar. It is claimed to be the largest span of its kind in the world, but I cannot vouch for that.

"A Terrible Mistake."

ONE of the most popular figures in Houston right now is Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, who,
unlike Reed, saw the handwriting
on the wall and renounced his own candidate in favor of Smith's. The writer had lunch yesterday with the Governor, who is not without humor. "It seems that I made a terrible mistake," he said. "Since I have been here, at least three fourths of the delegates have come to me personally and assured me
they had intended to vote for me.
I never dreamed that I possessed such strength. It appears that there was a terrific undercurrent of Ritchie sentiment, and if I had remained in the race there is hardly any doubt that I would have been nominated on the second or third ballot. I am taking all their names," he added, with a twinkle,
"and if I should be in the fight
again four or eight years from now,
I shall know just whom I can depend on."

"Carried Maryland on It."

THIS Ritchie, by the way, is no trimmer. He is wet. He does not believe that the Eighteenth Amendment belongs in the Constitution; he believes that it violates the rights of the states, and he does not believe it can be enforced. He will offer a wet plank to the convention, and he may appear in person to urge its adoption. "I think it is a pretty good plank," he said. "I carried Maryland on it three times." Ritchie may have his chance yet. He is still a young man, comparatively,

and he can afford to wait. It is almost incredible that a man of his good looks can have so much intelligence and character. Politicians are notoriously hard on the eyes.

Critic Takes to Cover.

GUESTS of the Rice Hotel,
which is the main gathering place of delegates and newspaper correspondents, got a touch of the wild west yesterday. It appears that the irrepressible Henry L. Mencken, famous Baltimore wit, had intimated in one of his essays that Texans were not so woolly as has been reported. In order to correct this impression, a citizen of Fort Worth visited the Baltimore Sun headquarters, where Mencken was sweating over his daily dispatch, and casually fired several shots into the floor with a .45. While the noted critic scrambled for cover, the visitor ambled down the corridor, and pushed the elevator button. All cars were crowded, and the first one passed him up. Displeased, the Fort Worthian calmly smashed four glass panels in the door with the butt of his six-shooter. A woman from Iowa had to be carried into a room and covered with ice water.

"As Bad as That."

MAYOR JIMMIE WALKER of New York City arrived yesterday and it was necessary for the police to rope off the streets around Union Station. He wore a drooping Panama hat, purple suit and tan silk shirt. When his haberdashery was described to Mrs. Walker, who had arrived earlier, she sighed and said: "Oh,
dear, is it really as bad as that?"
Nevertheless, Houston folded the dashing Jimmie to its bosom and crowds followed him everywhere
—even to his meals. Lady delegates from Georgia and Oklahoma refused to believe that he was nearly 50 years old and made catty rejoinders to the males who supplied the information.

Jimmie's Near Double.

On the train which brought Mayor Walker was Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis and his secretary, Jimmie Gallagher.
Jimmie Gallagher and Jimmie
Walker look very much alike.
When the train stopped at Little Rock a crowd had gathered at the station and there were cries for Mayor Walker, who was asleep.
Gallagher went to the rear platform and bowed gallily, but did not respond to calls for a speech.
Mayor Walker in his green silk pajamas slept on.

The Usual Shortage.

THE bad humor of the Missouri delegation has not been improved by the distribution of tickets. This was in the hands of William Kemper of Kansas City, National Committeeman from Missouri. Although it is reported that he received about 400 tickets, less than 150 were given to the delegates—one each to delegates and alternates. In Texas there are a great many persons connected with the Orient Railway, which Kemper

gain rates with the assistance of the Interstate Commerce Commis-

number of Orient shippers are discovered in possession of convention tickets, the Missouri delegation may stage a riot.

ROBBER GETS $6000 IN HOLDUP IN BUSY TEXAS CITY STREET

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 26.—
The paymaster of the San Antonio newspaper Light was held up in the business section here today and robbed of $6000.
The robbery occurred immediately in front of the newspaper office.
George Farmer, paymaster, was entering the building with the money when a man leaped from an automobile parked at the curb and leveled a pistol at Farmer.
Backed him into an alley and robbed him. Many people passing saw the holdup, but the robber entered the car and escaped before anyone could interfere. The robber's two companions remained in the car.

TO GIVE UP AUTOS 30 DAYS

Rather than spend 10 days in the Workhouse, three persons who pleaded guilty to charges of speeding in Police Court yesterday agreed not to drive their automobiles for 30 days.

They were Leonard Gaines, 4011
West Pine boulevard, James Haywood, 1125 North Leonard avenue,
and Edmund Spriedler, 4411 Taft avenue.

May Not Going to Houston.

Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, will continue his campaign speaking tour this week in Southwest Missouri and will not attend the Democratic National Convention at Houston.

O'TOOLE'S PARADE AND GULF BREEZES FAN THE DELEGATES, SAYS WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

Democrats at Houston as Comfortable as in Any Convention, With Few Exceptions—Adjournment Big Issue.

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—As the convention awaits the kick of the gavel, the only important question over which a deadlock might ensue is whether Al Smith can be nominated on a straddling platform before Friday morning. The question of the time of adjournment is the big issue, before which prohibition, farm relief, foreign relations and the tariff for revenue
only fade into insignificance. Houston at that is doing her prettiest,
and Gulf breezes fan the sweaty
delegates who are as comfortable
here as they have been at any Democratic convention since Bryan's early days, excepting in Denver and San Francisco. But the delegates want to go home, where they can take off their shoes and let their feet swell and forget their troubles, which are many, chiefly centering about Smith. The attitude of the average Southern and Western delegate is like that of a Mormon elder bringing home a second wife—they have much to explain and a great deal of fast talking, so they want to go home and get it over.

Everyone Knows Smith Has Won.
The New England delegation, filled with Sullivans, Murphys, O'Tooles and Guadallies, came thundering down the main street of Houston this morning behind the band playing "The Wearing of the Green," and "The Sidewalks of New York." A band that did not know "Dixie," and thought the coon song, "Mississippi Mud" was a Southern favorite. The New England Smith delegation, calling
"All for Al and Al for All," irked
the proud Southerners and the few old-line Northern Democrats from the Atlantic seaboard, who represented an ancient plug-hat aristocracy. Everyone knows that Smith has won. Everyone knows that he will not accept a dry plank
and no one knows how to draft
an equivocal plank dry enough to win the border States, which believe in prohibition, and wet enough to keep Al's feet cool so he will stand hitched upon it.

The scattered remnants of the Wilson legion, serious, thinking
young gentlemen from the cloister, are hoping that the platform will stress Muscle Shoals as an issue, and so divert discussion from prohibition. The Southern press, which is equally divided about Muscle Shoals, is advising a clear-cut dry plank, to divert attention from Muscle Shoals.

Exit of Senator Reed.
Jim Reed's clarion Sunday, demanding indorsement of the Eighteenth Amendment by maintenance and enforcement of the Volstead act, marked the exit from Democratic politics of the stormy petrel. Four years ago, he was not sure of a status in the Democratic convention, eight years ago he was formally kicked out of the Democratic party. A dozen years ago marked his emergence into the national field. In these dozen years, he has run the gamut and gone to his political doom, swallowing the poison of his own record.
The prohibitionists, whom he has always opposed, would not accept him as an anti-Smith leader. The wets, who hoped for a Protestant Moose, would not accept him with his new dry plank. So at the end of his career, he is like the Kansas delegate who had a room on the sixth floor of the Rice Hotel this morning, and not being able to get an elevator to take him, walked up to the seventeenth floor, where an elevator was available, and rode down. Jim Reed has been walking up to the seventeenth floor for 13 years, as an anti-prohibition firebrand, only to get off at the sixth floor, to put out the fire in his own pants with a bottle of milk.

A Really Sad Little Cortège.

In the meantime, while the bands
were blaring in the political hotels
"The Wearing of the Green" and
"The Sidewalks of New York," and
"Ramona," down the streets yesterday afternoon came the dry parade, a really sad little cortège, headed by a band that marched through the hooting throngs from the great Northern cities, throngs of Reagans and Dooleys and the Venettis. The dry band was playing sadly and lonesomely, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." In the parade trudged the women of the W. C. T. U., the solemn sentry of the Anti-Saloon League and their allies and cohorts. They went to a Baptist church and prayed during a long hour for deliverance from Al Smith. So much for the mustard seed.

In the meantime, in the political

WET-DRY SQUALL IN ILLINOIS DELEGATION EASILY QUENCHED

Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis

By the Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.— George E. Brennan, entering his third term as Illinois member of the Democratic National Committee, is more completely in control of the delegation in the Houston convention than he was 10 years ago at the Madison Square Garden conclave.

At the New York convention
Brennan was able to hold the Illinois 53 delegates in line.
Gov. Al Smith. In the convention which opened today Brennan claims 57 delegates will vote for the New York Governor on the first ballot. Others in the delegation, however, believe that Brennan and possibly five will be held out
from Smith on the initial roll call.
William N. Hargrove, Jacksonville, representing the Twentieth District, is a proponent of Brennan.
James A. Reed of Missouri,
Brennan was elected to his third term as national committeeman
at a caucus last night. His slate of other delegation and convention posts was supported. Brennan was named chairman of the delegation. Other offices filled by the caucus included Elizabeth A. Ch-asey, Chicago, national committee woman.

Wet Chicago and dry down-
state had a sharp argument over an anti-prohibition resolution. A Cook County Commissioner, an opponent of the Eighteenth Amendment, presented the resolution, and fought for a roll call.
Among those opposing a roll call
but agreeing that the resolution
should be sent to the convention committee, was W. A. Moody, St.
Louis. Bruce Campbell, St.
Louis, helped quiet the squall.
"I want to felicitate you on the signs of victory in November," Brennan to the delegation. "We have no division on the question in Houston."

hotels, the sweaty delegates
tired visitors gawked on war-
feet at the notables and magnates, and the long day dragged on. Everything seems to be a mock battle in the Reunion Committee may hold the convention over until Friday. Agreement seems almost consummated
for Robinson for Vice President.
night wears on with no change
and presto: Click-click-click cause Clem Shaver is a thoroughgoing chairman, two more clicks and the gavel ends the lude and the great symphony human emotions known as the Democratic National Convention opens.

SUIT TO BLOCK DODGE-CHRYSLER MERGER FILED

Supreme Court Justice Takes Under Advisement Move Against $250,000,000 Auto Combine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 26.—Supreme Court Justice Muller reserved decision today on the application of a minority stockholder of Dodge Brothers, Inc. for an injunction to prevent the proposed $250,000,000 merger of that company with the Chrysler Corporation.

Justice Muller said the suit probably should have been brought in Maryland, where the Dodge company is incorporated.

"The question is whether we will take over a quarrel which may properly lie in Maryland," he said. Attorneys for both sides were instructed to file briefs on this point by tomorrow afternoon.

Col. Calvin H. Goddard of Richmond, Va., who asked for the injunction, complained that, under the merger plan, the minority stockholders would lose more than one-third of the liquidation value of $105 a share.

Temporary Writ Granted.
A temporary injunction restraining consummation of the merger was granted last yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Lydon.

The litigation was brought by the law firm of House, Holtzhusen & McCloskey, which represents owners of approximately 5000 shares of 1 per cent of Dodge preference stock.

The complaint alleges the preference shareholders have a prior claim on Dodge assets to the extent of $105 a share under the terms of the company's charter, and that the proposed security exchange with Chrysler would divest them of their property on an unfair basis.

A representative of Dillon, Read & Co., Dodge bankers and owners of all its voting stock, declined to discuss the suit last night, saying that answer would be made in court.

Bank and Officers Sued.
The banking firm and its chief officers are named as defendants in the action, as well as the Dodge and Chrysler corporations and their respective officers. Dodge Brothers, under its original owners, was for years one of the most successful units in the automobile industry. Although its tangible assets were carried at approximately $90,000,000, so great was its goodwill value that when the heirs of its founders placed the property on the market in 1925, Dillon, Read & Co., overbidding J. P. Morgan & Co. on behalf of the General Motors Corporation, paid $142,000,000 for it.

The complainants point out that when Dillon, Read & Co. formed the new Dodge Brothers, Inc. and transferred it to the Dodge assets, the bankers took in return $14,000,000 in cash which was in the Dodge treasury, $75,000,000 in debentures, $50,000 shares of preferred stock, 1,500,000 shares of Class A common stock and 500,000 shares of Class B common stock, the latter block of shares possessing sole voting rights and therefore constituting control of the company.

Sold for $160,000,000.
Of the securities taken, the banking firm sold bonds and stock for $160,000,000 cash, the complainant continues, retaining the Class B stock, and presumably, 650,000 shares of "Class A" stock. There were 650,000 shares out of the original issue of 1,500,000 Class "A" shares which were not sold to the public and disposition of which has not been publicly shown.

The complaint accordingly estimates that Dillon, Read & Co. has already made gross profits of $22,000,000 out of their connection with Dodge. The attorneys say the proposed terms of exchange with Chrysler would give the banking firm, at the present market price, an additional $12,000,000 for its 650,000 class "B" shares and the 650,000 shares of Class "A" stock which is not known to have been sold.

Women Ready to Submit Planks for Platform

Equal Rights Is One of Chief Demands on Democratic Party—Distinguished Guests at Convention.

By the Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—The initial pound of the gavel on the platform of Sam Houston Hall today will see Southern fashions in their prettiest and feminine heads cocked alert for the words that open the Democratic convention today.

The women had done a week's work preparatory to the party convention, and they were not to be outshone at the opening moment. All the National Committee women will be in their places on the platform, both those in office during the past four years and those newly elected who are to take office immediately after nomination of the party's candidate.

Representatives of a women's organization, who have planks to submit to the Resolutions Committee, are ready for the appointments that will show them their best bets. Distinguished women guests have arrived, have been met, and have been invited to the social functions.

Notable Women Guests.
Besides Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the presidential candidate, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, much famed widow of the war time President, Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham presents a unique feminine figure to take an official part in convention activities. She has suspended activity in her Texas campaign for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate to come from her ranch to Houston to relieve Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and president of the National Democratic Women's Club, of her duties as well as corner of the women members of the club.

"This is one of the finest conventions I have ever attended," said Mrs. Cunningham to visiting woman Democrats. "The horn blowing the yelling and the screaming of the eagle apparently do not mark this gathering as it has every previous one."

The serious, intellectual, more sober attitude toward the nomination of a presidential candidate will mark convention speeches and activities, and the rah-rah stuff will disappear.

Walker's Wife Expected Today.
The arrival today of Mrs. James Walker, wife of the New York Mayor, is awaited with eagerness by all those interested in person-ality. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Smith spent quiet evenings on the eve of the convention in their suites, accepting none of the many invitations extended to them.

Champ Clark's Daughter Nervous.
Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker Champ Clark, and wife of a New Orleans publisher, was seen pacing the lobby of the Rice Hotel, tall, cool, but hurried. Her position as national committeewoman from Louisiana rests upon the decision of the Credentials Committee on seating one of the two contesting Louisiana delegations to the convention.

The national woman's party has introduced the two leading members of its representation to secure a woman's equal rights plank in the national platform. Mrs. Mary Murray, member of the industrial council of the party and an ardent advocate of the abolition of all women's protective legislation, is preparing her speech to be presented to the Resolutions Committee.

Miss Mary C. Pittman, dean of women at Athens College, Athens, Ala., arrived from a motor trip from Mexico to appear before the Resolutions Committee for the woman's party.

Contests for Seats.
"If the Democrats want the women's vote," she said, "they must include a better plank than the Republicans did, a plank just as good as that of the Republicans will not do."

For the League of Woman Voters and their desired five-point plank, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, second vice president, and Miss Gertrude Ely, delegate-at-large from Pennsylvania, have arrived to supplement the work of Miss Belle Sherwin, national president.

One woman victor has emerged from the two contests fought before the subcommittee. She is Mrs. L. O. Keen, national committeewoman from the Canal Zone, whose delegation was seated by the subcommittee and confirmed by the National Committee. Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, leader of the District of Columbia delegation, opposing National Committee member John F. Costello, had said that she will withdraw with her forces, not appealing her last case to the Credentials Committee.

The proposed plan calls for exchange of one share of Chrysler common stock, at present paying a $3 dividend, for one share of Dodge preference stock. Chrysler closed at $69.50 a share on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, as against the $105 to which the complainants assert they are entitled to.

Dodge Class "A" stock is to be exchanged at the rate of five shares for one share of Chrysler common, and Dodge Class "B" stock at the rate of 10 shares for one of Chrysler.

As owners of all the voting stock, Dillon, Read & Co., under the Maryland laws, in which state Dodge Brothers was incorporated, apparently have power to transfer the company to Chrysler without vote of other Dodge shareholders, but Walter P. Chrysler specified the deal would be contingent upon approval of 90 per cent of all Dodge stockholders.

Time for deposit of Dodge stock under the plan expired last midnight. It is not known whether sufficient stock had been deposited at that hour to meet the Chrysler terms.

How Owners Will Fare.
If all Dodge stock is exchanged, the complainant argues, its present owners will have to return 1,277,004 shares of Chrysler stock, or 23 per cent of the proposed total of Chrysler that would be outstanding after the exchange.

In other words, the attorneys contend, "they will have contributed half, or more, of the assets of the recapitalized Chrysler Corporation and will receive less than one-third of the stock representing the combined assets of Dodge Bros., Inc., and the present Chrysler Corporation. The preference stockholders, if they make the exchange, share for share, will hold about 850,000 shares of Chrysler common out of a total of 4,423,484, or a minority interest of less than 20 per cent on a par with other common stockholders."

GETS DIVORCE FROM WOMAN HE SAID HAD TWO HUSBANDS
William H. Stein, a roofing salesman, 3621 Dover place, who charged that his wife, Mrs. Bertha A. Stein, had not been legally separated from a former husband, was granted a divorce yesterday by Circuit Judge Hall. He also charged general indignities.

At a recent hearing, Stein produced as a witness George E. Enlow of 18 South Leonard street, father of seven children by a second marriage, who testified he married Mrs. Stein in 1908 and deserted her. Mrs. Stein declared the witness did not look like her former husband, George H. Enlow, who she said she understood had been killed in an automobile accident.

WET-DRY SQUALL IN ILLINOIS DELEGATION EASILY QUIETED

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—George E. Brennan, entering upon his third term as Illinois member of the Democratic National Committee, is more completely in control of the delegation in the Houston convention than he was four years ago at the Madison Square Garden conclave.

At the New York convention Brennan was able to hold 45 of Illinois' 58 delegates in line for Gov. Al Smith. ## PART OF LACLEDE PLANT OBSOLETE, ENGINEER ADMITS

Letter From Officer, Introduced by City, Says Some of Old Retorts Are "Uneconomical to Operate."

OPINION OPPOSES OFFICERS' CLAIMS

Valuation of Alleged Useless Equipment Should Be Deducted, Counsel for St. Louis Asserts.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 26.—Conflicting views among the owners and operators of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis concerning the value of some of the property in its rate-making valuation, were disclosed in a surprise bit of evidence introduced by the City of St. Louis today, in the hearing before the Public Service Commission on the company's higher rate proposal.

The evidence was a letter written by Eugene C. Lang, engineering assistant to the vice president of the Utilities Light and Power Corporation of Chicago, which controls the holding company in control of the Laclede Gas Light Co., to a stockholder of the holding company. It tends to substantiate claims of the city that some of the Laclede equipment should be eliminated from its valuation for rate-making.

The letter defends contracts which were executed for the Laclede company, by which it purchases gas from other subsidiaries of the Utilities Light and Power Co. at prices considerably higher than the cost of manufacturing gas in the Laclede plant, on the ground some of the Laclede gas making equipment was "more or less obsolete," and that some of the "old retorts" were "uneconomical to operate."

City Attacks Contracts.

The city has attacked these contracts, contending they are for the purpose of assuring greater profits for the parent company, the Utilities Light and Power, at the expense of the gas consumers in St. Louis, and has asserted the Laclede rate-making valuation should be reduced by about $3,300,000, to approximately $40,150,000.

In the hearing before the commission, officers and attorneys of the Laclede company have asserted, in support of their application for the higher gas rates, that the property is in as good condition as when it was valued by the commission 18 months ago. They are fighting the city's effort to trim the valuation.

Some of this same property which is declared to be in excellent condition, for higher rate purposes, as "more or less obsolete" and "uneconomical to operate," according to the letter of the parent company's engineer. The Lang letter was introduced by R. S. Boyles of the firm of C. E. Smith & Co., consulting engineers for the city. Boyles said he had requested Paul L. Krohn, 3398 Junata street, St. Louis, a stockholder in the holding company, the Laclede Gas and

HOOPER TO VISIT MISSOURI

special to the Post-Dispatch. *MARYVILLE, Mo., June 26.—Herbert Hoover will visit his No-daway County farm this summer.

Word that the Republican presidential nominee plans a trip to Maryville, the county seat, and to Graham, near which his farm is located, was brought by W. F. Phares, Maryville banker and former Republican State chairman, who returned Sunday from Washington.

Electric Co., to write to the Utilities Light and Power for an explanation of the contracts between the interrelated companies. The reply, written last June 2, was turned over to Boyles.

Lang's letter of explanation to Krohn referred to a protest filed by the City of St. Louis against the Laclede company's application for a rate increase, and said the contracts between the Laclede and other subsidiaries of the Utilities Light and Power Corporation at prices higher than the Laclede gas making costs, apparently were the basis of the protest.

"More or Less Obsolete." "Certain portions of the Laclede generating equipment, which were formerly used for the manufacture of coal gas in retorts, are more or less obsolete," the letter continued, and the cost of making gas in them approximates the cost of making water gas.

"What has been accomplished by the contracts, against which for some reason the City of St. Louis has filed a protest, is that the gas purchased under them supplants a portion of the water gas, and also supplants a portion of the coal gas which was being made in the old retorts which were uneconomical to operate, the final result being that for the past few months, with these contracts in force, the cost of gas of all kinds to the Laclede company, in the holder ready for distribution, is less than if all the gas was manufactured by the Laclede company with their own equipment."

"The whole question is somewhat involved from an engineering viewpoint, but nevertheless, the facts remain."

"We trust that we have made ourselves clear and that you will be in a position to dispense this information to the best advantage."

Difference of $1,500,000. Boyles introduced the letter in connection with his testimony that nearly $1,500,000 in property that was a part of the plant account when the present rate-making valuation was fixed, is not now used in the public service and should be deducted from the valuation.

George B. Evans, president of the Laclede company, was recalled to the stand by company attorneys, and testified that some of this property constituted a reserve or stand-by plant to meet emergency. He declared it should be retained in the valuation.

Evans defended increases in expenses charged by the Laclede company for advertising and attracting new business, stating the volume of gas sold by the company had shown a net increase of 2.9 per cent in 1927, despite a loss of street light business, through installation by the city of electric lights, that amounted to 2 per cent of the sales volume.

Submission of evidence was completed at noon and the hearings adjourned. Preparation of the transcript of the hearing will require three weeks, and the commission allowed the city and Laclede company two weeks after delivery of the transcript in which to file briefs. An oral argument will be held before the full commission after the briefs are filed.

To Submit Case in August. These arrangements will delay submission of the case for a decision until early in August. Several weeks more likely will elapse before the commission makes a decision on the company's application for higher rates.

$50,000 EXTORTION PLOT DISCLOSED

Chicagoan Suspects Attempt to Capitalize Disappearance of Son Found Hanged.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 26.—Nettleton Neff, Chicago capitalist, disclosed today that he was co-operating with Boston police in a search for an extortionist who attempted to take advantage of the disappearance of Neff's son, William Wayne Neff, a junior at Harvard, whose body was found hanging from a tree near Stonington, Mass. The body was found two weeks after the youth disappeared. Young

Neff apparently had taken his life. When Neff returned to Chicago last week, he said he found two letters awaiting him, one demanding $50,000 for his son's ransom and the second declaring that his failure to meet this demand had resulted in his son's death. The first letter was postmarked at Boston, June 17, the day the body was found. Neff said he was convinced the letters were sent by someone attempting to take advantage of the disappearance.

Neff was asked to appear at State and Washington streets, Boston, last Sunday, carrying a box containing the money. Then followed instructions for taking the money to a place where it was to be left. The second letter, postmarked June 18 from Boston said the kidnappers had planned to wait until July 4, but had "tired of waiting" and had killed the youth. It also referred to three previous threatening letters which Neff said he had not received.

MAN WHOM STEPSON HIT WITH HAMMER DIES

Joseph Meyer Was Beaten After Striking Wife When Told to Go Home.

Joseph Meyer, 44 years old, a merchant, 3419A Lemp avenue, died at City Hospital last night of a fractured skull inflicted by his 17-year-old stepson, Charles Durbin, last Thursday night.

Meyer was on a drinking spree that night and failed to return home for dinner, according to his wife, Mattie, and young Durbin, her son by a previous marriage. They drove about the neighborhood looking for him and found him in a saloon at 4301 South Broadway.

Called outside and told to go home, Meyer became indignant toward his wife and stepson and knocked Mrs. Meyer down, police were told. Durbin ran to his parked automobile, obtained a hammer and struck his stepfather on the head four times. Meyer went down, and was removed to the hospital.

Young Durbin was arrested on an assault-to-kill charge.

PLAN FOR ONE-WAY TRAFFIC ON OLIVE AND LOCUST TABLED

Aldermen Decide Time Too Brief for Public Hearing and Action Before Adjournment.

Action on the pending ordinance to establish one-way traffic for street cars and other vehicles in Olive and Locust streets, between Fourth street and Twelfth boulevard, has been deferred, by a vote of the Board of Aldermen today. A public hearing was to have been held Thursday, but the Board adjourned for vacation Friday, and Alderman Schwartz, chairman of the Legislative Committee, pointed out that time was too brief for the hearing and subsequent action, so the Board laid the bill on the table.

The Committee once, had reported favorably on the bill, but it was recommitted when Olive street merchants protested. That protest has led to formation today of the Olive Street Owners', Tenants' & Lessors' Association, comprising 60 merchants between Fourth and Twelfth. W. B. Huette Jr., shoe dealer, is president; Stanley Goldman, furniture dealer, secretary, and John Mavrakos, candy merchant, treasurer. An assessment of $5 a member was voted. The association may recommend routing westbound Olive cars in Pine street instead of Locust street.

MAN, 70, SAYS FOR TEN YEARS HE HAS LIVED ON BAD CHECKS

"I Was Honest Up to the Time I Was 60"; Swindled Mail Order Houses.

Postoffice inspectors arrested a 70-year-old man today in East St. Louis, charged with fraudulently obtaining mail order goods, and heard his confession that for 10 years he had made a living by writing worthless checks on mail order houses all over the country. He said he was R. C. Jones, alias Harvey J. Jackson, and claims to be a registered physician, as well as an ex-convict.

"I was honest up to the time I was 60," he said. He was arrested at 1292 Baker street, East St. Louis, after an express shipment for which he had paid with a bad check was traced to him. He said that he made it a practice to order a large bill of goods from a mail order house, paying for it with a bad check. When the goods arrived, he packed them in a suitcase and moved to another address. Later he disposed of the goods. Two new women's coats were found in his room, along with the typewriter on which he wrote his checks.

MRS. KNAPP FILES APPEAL

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—Mrs. Florence Knapp, former Secretary of State, has filed notice of appeal from her conviction for grand larceny in connection with the misuse of funds appropriated for the 1925 State census, of which she was director. The appeal, filed Saturday, will be heard in the fall. The 30-day limit for filing an appeal expired yesterday. Although there was a question whether it was necessary to file such notice within 30 days from the date of conviction, Mrs. Knapp's counsel said he had determined not to await sentencing of his client. The sentence was postponed in order to give Mrs. Knapp time to recover from a nervous breakdown suffered at the time of her conviction.

KILLS WIFE WHOM HE FOUND WITH STRANGERGarage Employee Surrenders—Says He Struck Her With Fist.By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 26.—For the second time in six months, Mrs.
Fannie Bondorchuck's husband went to their home yesterday afternoon and found her entertaining
a man.Jan. 11, when she lived in Brooklyn and was the wife of John Krulick, her husband was killed in a fight that followed a similar surprise. Yesterday afternoon, when she was the wife of Leon Bondorchuck, she was killed in a fight that followed the surprise.Leon Bondorchuck, 38 years old,
a garage worker, told the police
last night that he went home about 4 o'clock and found his wife drinking in the dining room with a man he had never seen before.
He said he ordered the stranger out."Who are you to order anybody out of here?" Bondorchuck said his wife screamed at him. He attacked the visitor, who fought his way free and ran out through a rear room of the apartment to the fire escape, on which he got away.
Bondorchuck related that he struck his wife with his fist and she fell on a bed. Angry and disconsolate, he went out. He came back in about half an hour, and shook her but she did not move.
He tried to get a physician, he said, but could not, and called the police and an ambulance.The ambulance surgeon said Mrs. Bondorchuck seemed to have been beaten to death. She was badly bruised and several ribs were broken. Detectives arrested Bondorchuck. The stranger has not been found.PRESIDENTIAL YEARS DO NOT HURT BUSINESS, SURVEY SHOWSNational Industrial Conference Board Says Other Factors Must Be Reckoned With.By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 26.—It would seem to be a fair conclusion, says
the National Industrial Conference Board, that business in presidential years is not affected in any definite or regular way by the fact of presidential elections. Other factors, such as war, depression at all times and including such exceptional events as wars, are the basic determining influences.The chart, prepared by the board, indicates that in 12 previous presidential election years, with a total of 144 months, business was above normal in 71 months, below
normal in 71 and normal in two.Considering the yearly periods, the board found that business was normal throughout the year in four years and prevaillingly better than normal in two additional years. Business, likewise, was below normal throughout the year in four years and prevaillingly below normal in two other years.The average for the 12 years, represented by the bottom line,
shows January, February, March, April, October, November and December, or seven months, slightly above normal. One month, May, is normal. June, July, August and September are slightly below normal.

INCLEMENT WEATHER DELAYS

WORK ON OLIVE STREET

North Side of Improved Thoroughfare to Be Finished July 10.Inclement weather of recent weeks will delay the completion of the north side of widened Olive street beyond July 4, the date originally scheduled for opening the improved thoroughfare. W. W.
Bioner, city engineer of streets and sewers, predicted today that
with good weather, the paving would be finished July 10.The north side of Olive from Jefferson avenue west is open to traffic, and the north side from Twelfth boulevard to Eighteenth street is scheduled to be finished
this week. The concrete foundation is being laid between Eighteenth street and Jefferson avenue.
Bioner announced that the paying of De Baliviere avenue between Pershing avenue and Delmar boulevard with asphalt would begin this week, and that the paving of Twelfth street between Russell boulevard and Sidney street with asphalt would also probably begin.Paving of the northward extension of Skinner road, from Delmar boulevard to Rosedale avenue, has been started and should be finished by the end of next month. Asphalt is being used. The cost is $27,000.

CITY TO VACATE TWO BLOCKS

An ordinance to vacate Poplar street, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, to make room for construction of a warehouse by the Santa Fe Railroad, was passed by the Board of Aldermen today.
Another ordinance passed provides for vacation of a north-south alley, extending between Olive and Pine streets, west of Twelfth boulevard, to permit erection of a 12-story office building facing Olive street and adjoining the Missouri Pacific Building. Promoters of the new structure agreed to de-nate land to it on the east to replace the present alley.

In announcing the figures, Dr.

some States they reflect but a part of their total foreign trade, and for others include goods produced elsewhere.

Illinois Exports Declined $3,000,000

By the Associated Press.

ports leading the nation, at $769,-

AMUSEMENT TAX ON MOST TICKETS ENDS ON FRIDAY

The Federal amusement tax, repealed by Congress except on tickets of $3 and over, will end next Friday, when the bill becomes effective. After that date baseball
tickets will cost $2 instead of $2.10
and the odd cents added to the price of theater tickets will no longer be charged for shows where the admission is less than $2.

The change does not affect motion picture shows or other attractions to which less than $1 admission is charged as they have not been taxed for several years.

Neither does it affect the Municipal Opera, which is tax free, because of its civic character. The change comes almost in time for the return of the Cardinals from their successful road trip, as it is effective for their second game, Friday.

Tickets for the games beginning Thursday are on sale at the Arcade Building box office, where today the line of buyers was a block long at the luncheon hour.

HAZARD, Ky., June 26.—Dedication ceremonies of a hospital and health center at Hyden, a mountain community more than a day's ride by horseback from this railroad town, were held this morning with Sir Leslie Mackenzie of Scotland, officiating.

The center, a new unit in the organization of the frontier nursing service, is in one of the most isolated districts of the Kentucky hills. On the slopes of Thousand Sticks Mountain, the little hospital will service communities along Hurricane Creek and that other noted Kentucky stream. Hell-Fur-Sartin.

RECEPTION ARRANGED FOR 90 ON AIR TOUR

30 Airplanes in Ford Reliability Contest to Arrive Here Saturday.

Plans for the reception and entertainment of more than 90 flyers and their passengers who are to arrive in St. Louis in the 6000-mile National Air Tour for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy, were completed yesterday at a final meeting of the committees in charge of arrangements.

The airplanes, more than 30 of them, are scheduled to arrive at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 5 p. m. Saturday from Indianapolis and their pilots and passengers will be guests of St. Louis until Monday morning, when the tour continues to Tulsa, Ok.

The ships will be checked as they land by T. Preston Sultan, airport consultant and official timer. Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, St. Louis aviation pioneer, will have charge of landing and fueling arrangements at the field, assisted by O. E. Scott, field manager.

There is to be one plane in the race piloted by a St. Louisan, a Curtiss "Robin," to be flown by Dan Robertson.

DIVORCE SUITS OF THREE ACTRESSES UNDER INQUIRY

Chicago Judges Begin Investigation of Legal Residence of the Petitioners.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The divorce suits of three actresses were under investigation today by Judges Sabath and Lynch in an effort to determine the authenticity of the legal residence of the petitioners.

During the last two years Chicago has become a popular place for actresses and actors seeking divorce. Several stage stars have won divorces in Chicago courts in recent months, the list including the names of Fanny Brice and Helen Menken.

Those involved in the present investigation are Mrs. Helen Cressman Carr, wife of Alexander Carr,
the actor; Audrey Maple, a principal in the cast of "Sunny Days," and Miriam Hopkins, who during a brief stage appearance here filed suit for divorce.

Child Shot in Leg.
Joseph Neubauer, 13 years old,
was wounded in the right leg yesterday by a revolver cartridge
which exploded when he struck it with a hammer near his home at 2502 University street.

BROWNS Turnover

Sambo G., And Irfane Fairmount

By Dent McKim

Of the Post-Dispatch

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, carried in the maiden race which opened noon when E. H. Trotter's gelding, the ruck and won, paying $50.06 for Murray, rode the winner.

Irelia and Nodding were the favorites and they finished second and third.

Turnover took the lead at the quarter pole, passing Joe Adams and Brunina to go to the front. There was a heavy last-minute mutual play on Joe Adams and he appeared well meant.

Delightful weather and a fast track attracted a crowd of 6000.

Sambo G. in Front.

Sambo G., the colt which folded up when Joe Engel came on to win at a long price a few days ago, ran like a champion in taking the second race today, a short dash for 2-year-olds. Lou Morris rode both times.

Cleannor appeared to have the race won at the sixteenth pole, but G. Williams reckoned without Sambo, which came with a rush. Sambo, which was quoted at 10 to 1 to win, finished third, not far behind the leaders. The winners paid $14.15 for $2.

Favorite Out of Money.

Foretold, a 4-year-old gelding, running for the Missouri Sable, responded to L. Aron's urging in the stretch and passed a half dozen horses to win the third race. Lord Valentine was third, after setting a fast pace, and Hourmore was second.

Battlefield, the favorite, was out of the money, never prominent at any stage.

A $2 ticket on the winner was good for $15.68.

Delay in Starting Fourth.

A delay of 12 minutes at the post at the start of the second race was caused by the refusal of two horses, Malcolm and LeylandX to line up in the stall gate which has been returned to use at the six-furlong chute. Malcolm broke away several times and Oregon Fir also ran a furlong before the start.

Finally Starter Snyder and his assistants got the fractions ones in line and the field of 16 was away in good shape.

Irfaneh and Malcolm fought it out all the way and finished first and second, with Marabou third.

The winner, ridden by J. P. Par, malice, paid $7.14 for $2.

The Real Thing.

Johnny Farrell is not only the champion dresser of the links but the champion golfer. As a certain poet might have said:

"A S Alexander I will reign,
And I will reign alone;
And I would ever more disdain
A rival on my throne.
But if at all these other dubs
Thou shouldst not cast a glance
I'll make thee famous with my clubs
And glorious with my pants."

Johnny Farrell may have been the best dressed golfer among those present but Bobby Jones nearly ran him ragged.

Too True.

Johnny Farrell may have been the best dressed golfer among those present but Bobby Jones nearly ran him ragged.

The St. Louis contingent played a well-tailored game on the whole. But the clump had the goods on them in the matter of plus fours.

It is said that Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York was badly in need of a shave upon his arrival in St. Louis. Indicating that the first man he'll shave on arriving in Houston will be Clem Shaver.

The Red Sox took a double-header from the Yankees, while the Phillies split one with the Giants last Saturday. Judging by the way the worm has been turning of late it would appear that he has at last been sold to the proposition that one good turn deserves another.

"Woolen Mentioned for Vice President."
He's all Woolen a yard wide.

Ray Woods, the St. Louis diver, says he jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge. But as no one saw him do it, maybe he was just practicing to see if he could do it before pulling the stunt in public.

DEFENDING FRENCH GOLF CHAMPION DEFEATED

CHARENTILLY, France, June 26.—Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chausse, the defending French women's golf champion and holder of the British championship last year, met defeat today in the third round of the French title tournament at the hands of Mrs. Percy Garon of Thornton Park, England. The score was four up and three to play.

BIGGEST CIGAR

PITCHING AND HITTING SOUND DEFENSE ENABLED
TEAM TO JUMP FIVE PLACES

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

Excellent pitching, remarkable hitting in the pinches and a fine defense combined to give the Cardinals their great record of 21 victories and only six defeats during the road campaign which ended yesterday with a 5 to 2 triumph over the Reds in 11 innings.

When the Cardinals departed St. Louis, May 28, they were 15th best, a winning percentage of .458. Now they have 43 victories and a half game ahead of the second place Giants, increased percentage of .642. In 28 days they climbed from fifth to first place, a jump of five places.

Shelton beat the Pirates 10 to 1, broke into a game at Philadelphia long enough to be credited with a victory that was gained 13 to 12 and then beat the Giants 8 to 3, the Dodgers 6 to 5 and the Cubs 4 to 1. Alexander was knocked out by the Giants in a game that the Cardinals later won for Mitchell. Old Pete then beat the Braves, 8 to 1, and scored three victories over the Reds in eight days, 6 to 2, 9 to 4 and 7 to 4.

Johnson won from the Pirates 4 to 3, worked as relief pitcher in Brooklyn and won 5 to 2 and beat the Cubs 4 to 1. Haines lost his first start on the road to the Pirates, 3 to 2, and then won four in a row, beating the Dodgers, 15 to 7, the Braves, 3 to 2, the Cubs, 6 to 2, and the Reds, 5 to 2.

Frankhouse's one start was against the Braves and though he retired under fire he was credited with a victory, 9 to 6. Rhem beat the Pirates, 7 to 1, in the first game on the road and then after losing to the Giants, 4 to 3, he beat the Braves, 11 to 8, and lost to the Cubs, 8 to 4.

Reinhart pitched in only two games. He beat the Phillies, 1 to 0, and then was knocked out by the Giants, being charged with the 8 to 3 defeat.

Mitchell, the veteran left-handed spitball artist, pitched like a champion each time he went to the hill. Believing Alexander in New York he held the Giants to 3 hits and 1 run in seven innings, winning 11 to 6. His next appearance was a start against the Dodgers. He went 11 innings, giving nine hits and two runs and then retired for Johnson, who was credited with the victory in 14 innings when Bottomley hit a homer with two on base. Then Mitchell pitched a five-hit game against the Cubs, only to lose, 2 to 1, because Blake held the Cards to two hits and the Cubs scored two runs on fluke hits.

Maranville's Play Has Been One of High Spots in Success of the Club

When the Cardinals have aces or crack wide open, it is good to take more than any team has shown so far to prevent Mitchell's team from romping through the season to another pennant for Sam Bresdon. The team has the pitching, the hitting and the reserve power and sound defense. In Jimmy Wilson, a man capable of working every day without weakening.

After the Cardinals beaten the last man is out. Epps beat the Reds held them to two hits in eight innings and went into the ninth with a one-run lead. The Cards tied the score in the ninth and won in the eleventh.

The work and influence of Rabbin Maranville must not be overlooked in summing up the excellent record of the Cardinals. Once upon a time the Rabbit was a man who used to paint the town every night and go diving for fish at the Buckingham outdoor pool in the early hours of the morning. He was known throughout the circuit as a two-fisted pitcher who played baseball as a side line. But after living the life of a wastrel for all those years he suddenly realized that he had nothing to show for his life. He climbed on the water tower and he has come back as a great player. He is not as spry in the old days, nor is he the dangerous hitter. But Maranville has more spirit and fight than any other player on the club. He keeps the team hustling and happy and deserves much of the credit for the team's great climb to first place.

"I was a dumbbell for many years," the Rabbit frequently remarks. "But I'm wise to myself now. Watch me squeeze the neck of No. more carousing for me. And how I love to play this old game." And the way the Rabbit is going and pepping up the Cardinals, Tommy Thevenow will have a hard time breaking into the battle front again.

Good Break for Thevenow. Incidentally it will be a great break for Thevenow. Rest this season will enable his injured ankle to regain its strength and next spring, all experts predict, Thevenow will have regained the speed that made him an outstanding star in 1926.

The Cardinals will play an exhibition game at Bloomington, Ill., tomorrow. The squad will return to St. Louis at 10 o'clock tomorrow night. Thursday the Pirates will open a series of five games against the Cardinals at Sportsman's Park, with Sherdel or Mitchell hurling the first contest. The series includes a double-header Sunday.

Pitchers Sherdel and Johnson, Catcher Wilson and Outfielder Douthit returned to St. Louis this morning. Haines stopped over at his home in Phillipsburg, O., but will report here Thursday morning.

Toro and Misstep Likely to Meet in Race on Saturday

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The American and Latonia Derbies, and Misstep, Leo J. Marks' crack 3-year-old, will carry their rivalry to the American national turf and field handicap at Arlington Park Saturday.

There are 138 nominations for the race which will be at a mile and a furlong for $15,000 in added money.

They were scheduled to trade thumps last Tuesday.

Jack Kearns has made it plain that there will be no Mickey Walker-Leo Marks fight in New York unless both men come in at catchweights. That was his understanding, Kearns says, when he gave Humbert Futary permission to go ahead with the match. Futary had intended to promote it early next month at Ebbets Field.

Napoleon Jack Dorval and Jerry Charles, two of the younger men who hope to graduate into the ranks of the senior eliminator, will meet tonight at the Queensboro Stadium where

The "Clinging" Title.

JOHNNY RISKIO and George

Godfrey will try again, tomorrow night, to complete their match, twice postponed.

Not that the world cares very much about this encounter, which appears to be for the world's holding and hitting championship.

As clingers, these men are the world's greatest holding company. Grab with one hand and sock with the other is the slogan with almost no clean fighting.

It is the type of hauling and mauling battle so dear to the hearts of the fighters and so little enjoyed by spectators.

As for the men themselves, at this time neither is going anywhere, although Riskio has been asked to hold himself in condition to "sub" for Heenev, should anything happen to the challenger in his preparation for the Tunney battle.

Sharkey is being saved for a next year attraction, and so Riskio may get the job as alternate or substitute.

The "Dark" Side of It.

GODFREY, although a mauling of a man, cannot get anywhere in the heavyweight world as long as Tex Rickard attends to the promotion. Rickard has always believed that a mixed-race fight for the world's championship was fraught with hazards and he has been out-cupped against such matches for fear of their effect on the mob.

That is not to be construed as meaning that Godfrey is generally formidable. Some very ordinary men have held off Godfrey and Sharkey, among others, he has beaten him. When a 190-pound man decisively whips one weighing 235 pounds, the giant strikes in pugilistic stature.

Those who have seen Godfrey saw a lot of dark landscape and not much in the way of fighting. In no case is it probable that he would be given a title chance in New York, unless his record was so outstanding that it could not be ignored. And this it certainly is NOT.

It is well for the heavyweight fight game that two men of the type of Tunney and Sharkey still survive. Without them the survivors would consist of a lot of stevedore maulers, without punch or science.

Baseball Espionage.

ED ROUSH, "dread of being spied upon," quit baseball, telling Acting Manager Brennan to "go to thunder." Everyone knows that acting managers deserve to be exiled to a tougher place than that, but the outburst served notice on the club that Ed was peeved with the espionage system installed by the management.

Ball players have a chronic grouse against clubs with a clock-punching requirement for their employees. They think games should not be crabbied by vulgar restrictions as to hours, anti-dance regulations, no-poker rules and an 11 o'clock retiring time. Naturally, too, they are unhidden watchers at their parties who might meanly retail the facts to the management.

But the espionage system is here, brought on in other days by a few who violated flagrant observance of training conditions, and it is now imposed alike on the just and the unjust. Probably all clubs that can afford it, get reports on their players at times, especially on those of known waywardness.

The Browns and the Cardinals at times have kept tabs on their men. It was the report of operatives that determined President Phil Ball to wreck his shiftless crew of last year and rebuild from the ground.

And it was on reports of Cardinal indiscretions that certain machinery of the local revenue office was at one time invoked in the interest of the club.

The Yankees for several years were under rigid observation, which at one time resulted in a reprimand to the players administered in person by Commissioner Landis, in the club house after a ball game.

The majority of baseball players get their way unsupervised by any secret eye; but even the offending minority resent the implication that they have to be watched.

Nevertheless, if a little closer espionage of baseball players had existed in earlier days, the Black Sox scandal probably never would have been written into history.

Vito Handicapped One Pound Better Than Victorian for Dwyer Stakes

By George Daley.

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The Dwyer Stakes of $25,000 for 3-year-olds, to be run next Saturday at Aqueduct over one and one-half miles, appears to be between Victorian and Vito. The former, sulked in the running of the Belmont Stakes, when allowed to race head and head with Sun Beau for a mile and a quarter, but he came back to be beaten only half a length under an ill-judged ride in the Brooklyn Handicap and just galloped to win the Shevlin Stakes from David Bone and Knapeack.

This race should settle the issue between him and Vito. The latter plainly will go the distance and he is training nicely. On the latest rating of Walter S. Vosburgh, the official handicapper of the Jockey Club, Vito is placed one pound better than Victorian. That is worth considering.

Will Reach Top Value.

The field this season promises to be a good one and in all probability the others who will start in addition to Victorian and Vito are of the same caliber. Robert L. Gerry's Ironsides, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau, the Salubria Stable's Strolling Player and the Wheatley Stable's Diavolo.

It is possible also that the Belair Stud's David Bone and George D. Widener's Gerard may strive for the rich purse.

The fixture will reach its top value on its fortieth renewal Saturday. Kentucky II won it a year ago, beating the odds-on favorite, Chance Shot.

The Dwyer Stakes is stamped by a family sequence of four winners from grandfather to father to two sons which makes it distinctive among turf classics.

Fair Play is the grandfather, Man o' War the father and American Flag and Crusader the two sons. No other fixture in the country, not even the Belmont Stakes or the Futurity, has furnished three winners in direct line and a fourth is possible some day when the sons of American Flag and Crusader come to the races to prove once again the potency of the blood.

Third Son May Score.

There is the chance that a third son of Man o' War will continue the family monopoly. Two may start—Genie and Ironsides. At this time they do not look particularly dangerous butting lineups.

Genie ran second to Vito in the Belmont Stakes over the same distance, while Ironsides won his last race a few days ago in a way to lead many to feel that he deserves a chance with the best.

Colin, unbeaten in 15 races, broke a family sequence of five in the Belmont Stakes by beating Fair Play in a never-to-be-forgotten struggle. If by chance Fair Play had won that day, the dynasty established by Australian, imported from England, would have run through five generations from Spendthrift in 1879 to Hastings in 1896, to Fair Play and thence to Man o' War and American.

But Fair Play was beaten on that spring day of 1908 and so it comes about that the Dwyer Stakes stands alone in this family monopoly.

Was Once Brooklyn Derby.

There are plenty of cases of father and son winning the same fixture, a few of which may be recalled—Pennant and Bunting in the Futurity; The Finn and Zev also Man o' War and American Flag in the Withers; Halma and Alan-Dale in the Kentucky Derby; Omar Khayyam and Aga Khan together with Fair Play and Man o' War in the Realization and the two doubles as mentioned in the Belmont Stakes. Some son of American Flag may win the Withers some day and equal the run of three in the Dwyer Stakes and there is a chance, too, of it coming about in the Realization through a son of Man o' War.

The Dwyer Stakes, first run in 1887 under the name of the Brooklyn Derby and won by the great Hanover, is rich in tradition. Dobbins, rival of Domino, won it and so did Octagon, The Huguonot, Peter Pan, Fair Play, Roamer, one of the greatest of geldings; Purchase, Man o' War, Grey Lag and Larkin.

The name was changed in 1918 by the directors of the Queens County Jockey Club, in memory of

Coast Athletes Leave for Final Olympic Trials

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 26.—

The exodus of the Pacific Southwest's track and field athletes for Olympic Games tryouts was well under way today. To augment numerous earlier departures, Dean B. Cronwell, selected as Olympic Games coach, from the University of Southern California, entrained last night at the head of a squad of six. Those who accompanied him were Jim Stewart, Jess Mortensen and Al Lefebvre, winners of the first three places in the Southwest's decathlon tryouts; Clyde Blanchard of the University of Arizona and Dick Pomeroy, and Alex Graham of Los Angeles, 400-meter hurdler. Cronwell will take his men direct to Philadelphia, where the finals of the decathlon and 400-meter hurdles will be held July 3 and 4.

More performers will entrain from Glendale tonight. Frank Wykoff, the high school conqueror of Charles Paddock; Russ Slocum, one of his sprinting mates, and their coach, Normal Hayhurst, will comprise this group.

The main body of the coast color bearers to the final tests leaves tomorrow morning. This contingent

CARDS ARE CLUB OTHERS MUST BEAT TO WIN FLAG, SAYS McGRATH

THINKS PIRATES WILL YET BE A FACTOR IN PENNANT RACE

By John J. McGraw.

(Manager New York Giants.)

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—The hurried work of the Boston Braves to tear up their short left field stands and move them back is pretty conclusive proof that the home run fad has reached its peak. The public is tiring. Baseball fans now get more thrill out of a long line triple than out of a high fly that falls in the stands.

Those short fences in Boston were of no particular advantage to any one club, but the fans of that city who know baseball and are critical, were quickly fed up on what started as novelty. The homers were too cheap.

These short fences also have had a bad effect on the pitching. In several cities the pitchers are in constant fear of using their J. McGraw stuff freely and working naturally for fear some batter will pop one into the stands and have his ball game broken up. This is particularly true in Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Chicago.

The biggest thing that has developed in the major leagues of late has been the punch and pitching of the Phillies. If Shotton's outfit keeps it up the Phillies are likely to have a tremendous effect on the race. They have done as much to knock the Western contenders out of their stride as any factor in the whole campaign. Shotton deserves a lot of credit for the way he has built up the fighting spirit of his club. He also has brought out a good young pitcher in Benge.

Cards Consistent Club. The only thing to be deduced from the trip of the Western clubs into the East is that the Cardinals have a strong, consistent ball club and is the club that the other contenders will have to beat for the pennant. The pitching settled down into steady effectiveness and immediately began to tell. In addition to that the Cardinals showed more pep and fight than any of the Westerners. The Cards can hit.

The Reds got some lucky breaks at the Polo Grounds and beat the Giants out of the series, but their Eastern record showed an inability to stand the road gaff as well as the Cardinals. The Cubs also broke badly, while the Pirates seem to be all shot up. Troubles with illness and accidents threw the Pirates out of gear and they appeared to have lost confidence. There is plenty of time for their punch to develop. The Pirates will yet be a factor.

The Giants are settling down. When they have caught up on their many postponed games the race will have a different aspect. The presence of Joe Genewich as another starting pitcher is bound to help. In fact, I regard the trade with Boston as a good move for both clubs. While we had to give up a lot we got the cog we wanted to balance our machine, and that was the main idea.

Pitching Much Better. For some reason, which I can't explain, the pitching generally seems to be better this year, notwithstanding the big batting averages of a few of the stars. Pitching has been a big factor in the walkway of the Yankees, despite the belief that it is due to the slugging. The records show a very small percentage of runs per inning scored against them. The work of Pipiras, for example, has been a remarkable feature. His arrival at real form is a good illustration of what any pitcher can do by patience and hard work. Hugine nursed him along nicely until he had overcome all minor defects. Pipiras will now go down in history as one of the leading pitchers of the game.

There seems little possibility of any early change in the American League race, but, in the National League the Giants have a great opportunity before them. They have about 15 games against the second division clubs while the Westerners are fighting between themselves.

I expect to see the Braves take a stride upward pretty soon. They are building steadily. Frankly, though, I don't think the race will really begin until the latter part of July.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—A football game between Pennsylvania and the University of Washington may be an intersection attraction here next fall, but thus far the proposed game is merely under discussion.

Missouri Has Furnished Only One of 45 Jockeys Now Riding at Fairmount

By Dent McKimling

If the roster of jockeys at Fairmount Park is typical as to the origin of the riders, it may be assumed that Kentucky not alone produces most of the thoroughbred running horses but most of the riders as well.

In a list of 45 boys licensed at Fairmount, nine are from Kentucky. No two other states combined have furnished such a proportion of riders. Louisiana is the home of four boys and New York and California have each furnished three.

The "hoss" is still popular with kids in Canada, for six of the Fairmount riders are from north of the border.

In each case, the states most prolific in the development of riders are the states which abound in race tracks—with one exception. Out in the great open spaces of Idaho, where men are men, boys are jockeys. They may not have been jockeys before Earle Sande, the Fator brothers and other Idaho boys became famous big time riders, but today every lad of 10 wants to get on a horse's back.

Clelland Can Handle Horse.

There are only two boys at Fairmount from Idaho but both are very clever riders—Otis Clelland and Melvin Knight. Clelland showed that he knows how to handle a horse in spite of handicaps when he figured in a spill a few days ago. The horse in front of him fell just after passing the finish. Clelland's horse also stumbled and both riders were thrown. Clelland was on his feet quickly and grabbed the bridle of his own horse with one hand and that of the other fallen horse with the other, and led them both to the judge's stand. Then, after his fellow jockey, Harold Mertz, had been treated for a broken arm, it was found that Clelland had suffered a broken collar bone. Controlling

30 Entries Are Expected for Boxing Tourney

The prospective enrollment today of representatives from such organizations as the South Broadway A. C., Business Men's A. C., East St. Louis Knights of Columbus and the Flori Olympian A. C. is expected to substantially increase the field of contenders for the annual Western A. A. U. junior championship boxing tourney to be held tomorrow night at the Motorbus arena, 3547 West Pine boulevard.

Tourney officials have been assured of four entries from the East St. Louis organization, according to Robert L. Probst, president of the Western District.

Most of the early entries for the junior championship carnival have been supplied by the People's Motorbus A. C., Power A. C. and 138th Infantry and the fact that a majority of the boxers representing these clubs are members of the lighter divisions, ranging from the flyweight to the lightweight class, indicates the meet will be featured by competition in these divisions.

The South Broadway A. C. is expected to furnish the bulk of heavyweight and light-heavyweight contenders, with prospects of individual entries from some of the other clubs.

With approximately 30 boxers expected to draw for pairings in the eliminations, the tourney will likely provide about 15 contests.

WANTS TO WIN 2 INTERNATIONAL TITLES BEFORE HE QUILTS TRACK

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, June 25.—Lloyd Lloyd, one of America's brightest track stars, said today that he would quit running after the Olympic games.

"It will not be one of those 'good-byes' farewells," he explained, "for I have made up my mind this time to settle down to business. You know, fellow has to give a great deal of track in time and in energy. If you want to be a champion you have to sacrifice much. You cannot think of anything else and what is more you cannot do anything else. It is like any other game, if you want to succeed at it, you cannot do it on part time. I like the thrill and the conquest that come with sport but I want to settle down soon. I have had my share of success. I want to win an Olympic title, in fact, I have my heart set on two titles, the 800 and 1500 meter races at Amsterdam, but win or lose over there I am through."

Lloyd will probably devote his time to the large farm which his parents own, but do not work, outside of Falls City, Neb. The Nebraska flyer, who has been training here under the direction of Jack Ryder, member of the Olympic coaching staff, is in excellent shape and is confident that he will break the world's half-mile record during the final Olympic trials at the Harvard stadium on July 6 and 7. Ryder believes that his star will shade 1:30 conditions are good.

TWO LEVEES BROKEN IN ARKANSAS FLOOD

Dikes Near Luxora and Piggott Crumble—Troops Patrol Threatened Area.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 26.—With national guardsmen still patrolling levees along the St. Francis River to frustrate possible attacks of dynamiters, the flood situation in Arkansas today appeared less serious.

Officers in charge of crews strengthening embankments along the St. Francis, White and Mississippi rivers said a disaster might come at any moment, but they held out more hope for gradual drainage of the overflow water without further damage.

About the time the Mississippi was crumpling a private levee near Luxora late yesterday, the St. Francis undermined an embankment near Piggott, threatening 10,000 acres with inundation. The Mississippi break flooded 1800 acres, but the other break was closed with sand bags after a battle of several hours.

In the White River valley, water was pouring through the Sand Hill break, but the general situation there was greatly improved, with pressure of the water gradually diminishing. No want was reported among refugees.

Relief at Georgetown Bridge, a mile west of McClelland, Ark., a danger spot in the present central White River levee situation was afforded by the wide rush of waters through a crevasse at surrounded hill, now measuring about 12 1/2 feet.

Lieut. L. B. Washburn of the Mississippi River Commission at Memphis, one of the officers directing the struggle to stave off a general flood, said the waters released through the break at Surrounding Hill have relieved the situation as far north as Postal Landing and Crinston, northeast of Georgetown.

4520 Families Affected by Flood in Missouri and Arkansas.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Reports received by the American Red Cross from its relief workers in the flood territory of Missouri and Arkansas said 4520 families were affected by the high waters of the St. Francis, Black and White rivers and that 600,000 acres were inundated, of which 250,000 were in crops.

Fifty hundred persons are in an emergency camp at Cotton Plant, Ark. The health situation there was reported as good, but the Red Cross has received requests for food. Feed for livestock was another problem facing the Red Cross workers.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER SARATOGA ATTAINS 33 KNOTS AN HOUR

Sister Ship of Lexington, Which Set Long Distance Record, Tested by Navy.

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 26.—The naval aircraft carrier Saratoga is thought by Navy officials here to have set new speed records for ships of her size in tests off Point Pirine. In five runs over a mile course the vessel was credited with an average of slightly more than 33 knots.

The highest speed, 33.42 knots, was made on the fifth run, and the lowest, 32.58 knots, on the fourth trip. The tests were conducted yesterday under the supervision of the Navy Pacific Coast Board of Inspection and Survey.

The Saratoga is a sister ship of the Lexington, which recently completed the fastest long distance run for ships of her size, averaging 30 knots for 72 hours between here and Honolulu.

Gets High School Diploma at 33.

By the Associated Press.

CHARTER OAK, Ia., June 26.—At the age of 23 William L. Goodell has won a high school diploma. He had to leave school as a boy to make his way, and he never had time until now to finish his course. But he did learn telegraphy, and two years and a half ago, after he had become railway station agent here, he found time to return to school.

SMITH SPEAKS AT HIS SON'S GRADUATION

Tells How Women Have Advanced in Politics and Predicts "Mary McManus for Governor."

"WORK GREATEST THING IN LIFE"

Describes Own Childhood in Talk to Graduates—Again Declines to Discuss Politics.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—Gov. Smith visualizes the day when his own present position as chief executive of the Empire State will be held by a woman.

"The chief difference I notice between exercises like this now and 20 years ago," he said in an address at the graduation of his youngest son from the Academy of the Sacred Heart of the Immaculate Conception, "is that both boys and girls take part now together."

"In my youth there were exercises for the boys of the class one day and the girls the next. The reason for that was that the things you'd tell the boys in that day you wouldn't tell the girls. You'd advise the boys so that they might train themselves to be captains of industry, professional men, or statesmen. You never would have thought of telling that to the girls. Not then. But now you tell them both the same things, because they are doing the same things."

Gov. Smith's President.

He turned with a smile to a classmate of his son who had won several prizes for scholarship, Mary McManus.

"It is not outside the realm of possibility," he said, "that one of these days we'll be hearing 'Mary McManus for Governor.'"

The Governor gave three hours of the last day before the opening of the Democratic convention to attending the graduation exercises in the Fulton Fish Market in New York, and of the struggle that lies in the years beyond youth.

"Work is the greatest thing in life," he said, "never be satisfied to take it easy. Nothing worth while ever attained that way. Why, if I hadn't had to run for it I would have quit the governorship after the second time."

Jokes About Meager Schooling.

The Governor joked about his own lack of formal schooling.

"But I have degrees of Doctor of Laws from four institutions now," he said, "and all I had to do to get them was to be elected Governor four times."

There was much laughter when he told one of his favorite stories, the one about the man who asked him what his college degree was when he was a State Assemblyman.

"I told him I was an F. F. M.," he said, "and when he asked what that was I told him Fulton Fish Market."

The Governor was a fish market clerk for a time between his career as a newsboy and his entrance into politics.

The Governor made no reference to current political matters nor to his own prospects, a subject on which he has declined to talk in his daily meetings with newspaper men.

He told reporters yesterday that he wasn't going to say anything of political import and all they could write about him was what he was doing.

"And what are you doing?" one reporter asked. "Nothing," the Governor replied.

GOVERNMENT SUES TO COLLECT $10,000 FINE OF COL. FORBES

Action Brought Against Insurance Company Which Was Surety on His Appeal Bond.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The United States Government is seeking in Federal Court to collect the $10,000 fine which was part of the judgment ordered for Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director-general of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The action is against the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co., which was surety on Forbes' appeal bond. The bond was posted after Forbes' conviction in Federal Court here and provided that he "abide by" the mandate of the higher court.

The Government contends that the phraseology that he "perform the terms of the judgment and sentence against him" is susceptible only to the interpretation that the bond should cover the payment of the fine as well as guarantee Forbes' surrender to go to prison if his conviction were affirmed, as it was.

UTILITIES EMPLOY EX-GOV. BROUGH AT $6000 A YEAR

Former Executive Is Director of Arkansas Information Bureau, Witness Testifies.

CLERGYMEN USED BY PROPAGANDISTS

E. W. Hodges Tells Trade Commission He Helped to Form Ministerial Alliance.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, June 26.—Suggested propaganda for the privileged power interests in Arkansas has cost from $20,000 to $25,000 a year for the last few years, according to testimony given today by E. W. Hodges, ex-Governor of Arkansas, before the Federal Trade Commission. Hodges
was secretary and treasurer both of the Arkansas Public Service Information Bureau and of the Arkansas Utilities Association.
Hodges was director of the Information Bureau from 1922 to 1925.
He was Secretary of State in Arkansas from 1911 to 1917. He is now employed by the Henry L. Doherly Co. of New York.

Brown declared that Dr. Charles H. Brough, Governor of Arkansas
from 1916 to 1920 was now director of the Arkansas Public Service Information Bureau. Brough, he said, received $6000 a year for his services. He said that Brough had delivered approximately 250
speeches a year over the State
since he became director in 1925, encouraging the development, particularly the industrial development of Arkansas, but that Brough was not otherwise very active in the bureau because of poor health.

Brown gave the details of the subsidizing of the Dixie Magazine
by the power interests to the ex-tents of $7500. Hodges introduced documents which disclosed that he had used ministers, teachers, State county and city officials in his propaganda activities. He was so successful in his contacts that J. B.
Sheridan, director of the Missouri Utilities Information Service,
in complimenting him, said: "I feel that I have learned a great deal in methods of personal contact with editors and prominent citizens from you."

Attorneys Clash.
The hearing today was marked by several sharp clashes between Robert E. Healy, counsel for the Trade Commission, and Carl D.
Jackson, officially counsel for the American Gas Association and the National Electric Light Association, who attended the hearings in New York. "And all I had to do to get them was to be elected Governor
four times."

Gov. Wyatt spoke at the graduation of his son, who had won several prizes for scholarship, Mary McManus.

The Governor gave three hours of the last day before the opening of the Democratic convention to attending the graduation exercises.

He handed the diploma to his son,
who was president of the class.

For 10 or 15 minutes he talked with his own youth, with due mention of the days when he was a clerk
in the Fulton Fish Market in New York, and of the struggle that lies in the years beyond youth.

"Work is the greatest thing in life," he said, "never be satisfied
until you have attained that way.
Why, if I hadn't had to run for it I would have quit the governorship
after the second term."

deal of contact with the people, are leaders and teachers and it seems to me, can do the utilities a great deal of good if we can interest
them in our business."

Helped Form Ministerial Alliance.
On the stand today, Hodges was pleased with his wide acquaintance
among the Arkansas preachers.
He said that he knew every clergyman in the State, as well as every newspaper man. He said that when he was the Arkansas director of utilities information, he had called all the ministers of Little Rock together in a "boosters' meeting," which resulted in a ministerial alliance.

"I have been thanked a thousand times for that work," he declared.
"Whenever you formed these contacts with ministers or other groups, you were always interested in the utility angle, were you not?"
Healy asked. "Sometimes."

"Didn't you go out of your way
to form contacts that would help
you in the utility work?" "Naturally," Hodges replied. "I was thinking utilities every hour of the day,
and I knew these contacts would help. But don't think I have anything to be ashamed of. I never did anything that I wouldn't be glad to have known."

"I Wouldn't Say 'Subsidized.'"
Brown testified that the Arkansas utility interests had resented the Dixie Magazine when it was about to go under for lack of funds.

"You subsidized the magazine,
didn't you?" Healy asked. "I didn't say subsidized," Brown replied. "We assisted it financially."
Brown stated that a little over $7500 had been "advanced" to the magazine, but that this would be refunded when it was taken under the wing of the State Chamber of Commerce.

Healy introduced several issues
of the magazine to show that it ran a great many articles against public ownership of utilities, against Muscle Shoals and the Boulder Dam project.

"Do you think your 'advance'
had any influence on any policies of the magazine?" Healy was asked. "We did not ask that the articles be printed," Brown replied.
"Apparently they were taken from our news bulletin."

"When you subsidized the magazine you knew the editor was against public ownership, did you not? If he advocated public ownership, you would not have made the advance?" "We knew his position," Brown replied. "We would naturally look after our own interests."

The headlines of some of the articles read: "Government ownership is a disaster," "The utility trusts belong to the people."

The information service spent from $20,000 to $24,000 a year on propaganda, mostly for salaries and printing. Of this amount the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.
contributed annually $2500. The Utilities Association spent an average of $3000 a year, of which the Southwestern contributed $255 a year.

PEKIN FOREIGN OFFICE CLOSED
NANKING, China, June 26.—
The Nationalist Ministry of Communications has notified the Ministry of Foreign Affairs that the Director-General and Co-Director-General of Posts has been instructed to close the Pekin office as is no longer required and to remove the head office to Nanking.
This notification is in direct line with the recent policy of the Nationalist Government to abandon Pekin as the capital. On June 21
the Nationalist Government Political Council decided to change the name of Pekin to Peking, meaning northern peace.

France Getting New Air Brakes.
PARIS, June 26.—France is finally getting around to air brakes on freight trains, 30 years after such a program was written into the peace treaty. Some 250,000 cars—half of the French rolling stock—will be equipped, partly through German reparations.
French industry fought the plan
to order from Germany equipment that will cost $64,000,000 during the next six years. It has been agreed two-fifths of the business shall go to French manufacturers and three-fifths obtained from Germany as reparations. An American type of brake is to be used.

NORTH ST. LOUIS is demanding that, if the Illinois Terminal System is granted a 50-year franchise, as it is asking, it should be required to eliminate the Cass avenue grade crossing.
The subway proposed by the electric line would emerge to the surface just in the rear of the fine
new building of the Cass avenue Bank (shown in lower photograph), at Cass and Thirteenth street, which becomes new Twelfth boulevard under the major street plan.

Cass avenue carries two street car tracks and about 4500 automobiles in a business day. The photographs above show that, although the present franchise of the company does not permit it to haul freight, it continues to bootleg freight carloads. Under the new franchise the movement of freight across Cass avenue would be greatly increased. The slogan of the North Side against the great crossing now is "Remember Delmar Avenue." It required 17 years to eliminate the Delmar crossing.

COOLIDGE MAKES
FIRST VISIT TO OFFICE Spends Morning in Learning to Paddle Canoe and in Fishing.

By the Associated Press.
SUPERIOR, Wis., June 26.—
President Coolidge, obviously much rested from his 10 days at Cedar Island Lodge, arrived at the executive offices in the high school here this afternoon. Several hundred persons stood about the lawn
to welcome him as he stepped from his automobile. Wearing a light gray suit and straw hat, President Coolidge responded to the cheers
of the crowd with smiles and spoke to the group of newspaper men who came from Washington with him on the special train.

It was the first time the President has been in Superior since he arrived a week ago last Friday.
He expected to care for a few routine matters and then return to the lodge.

The President caught seven trout before lunch, the largest, a rainbow, weighing three and a half pounds.

President Coolidge was said today
to be, outwardly at least, far more interested at present in learning
how to paddle a canoe than in watching the actions of the Democratic party at Houston. John Larock, his Chippewa guide, has been taking him out on the Brule
teaching him how to hold the paddle
and how to keep the canoe on its course without shifting from side to side.

Summoning Larock early today, President Coolidge did not even wait for the morning's mail to be brought out to him before he was off on the Brule fishing. After angling a little while he took another lesson in paddling from his guide.

Mrs. Coolidge, staying at home, enjoying the sun and romping with the dogs. Tiny Tim, the most vivacious of these, however, got into trouble by falling into the river off the lawn, and Mrs. Coolidge had to rescue him. Her only complaint was that his wet body spoiled the plants in her dress.

Duluth, just across the border,
yesterday received its first excitement from the transfer of the White House to the head of the lakes, when Mrs. Coolidge motored there to visit a department store haidresser. The commotion in Duluth was such that not only was the store packed, but crowds jammed the streets for blocks around. Special police details were ordered out to handle the crowd.

As she left, Mrs. Coolidge gave each of the three girls who did her work a bright quarter and replied,
in answer to a request to return,
that they would find her hard to get rid of. She indicated her return by opening a charge account.

U. S. GIFT TO RIO TO BE UNCRATED AFTER SIX YEARS
Statue Like Goddess of Liberty at Last to Be Set in Place.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, June 26.—
Boxed and in storage here for six years, the statue of a goddess typifying amity between the United States and Brazil is finally to be brought forth and set up on Rio's shore.

The American Chamber of Commerce in Rio de Janeiro conceived
the idea of presenting to the Brazilian republic a statue not unlike the Goddess of Liberty, her right hand bearing a torch and the left enfolded the flags of the United States and Brazil. Charles Keck was commissioned to do the figure
and it arrived in Rio in 1922.

But difficulties arose over selection of a site and the sculpture was put in storage. Now a place has been selected on the shore of the city's harbor, where the new United States embassy will provide a background. The figure will rise about 195 feet, with statues of several notable figures in the history of the North and South American republics at the base.

AUSTRIAN MINISTER RESIGNS
OVER ARREST OF BELA KUN
By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, June 26.—Franz Ding-hofer, Minister of Justice, has resigned his post as an outgrowth of criticism regarding his refusal to permit the extradition of Bela Kun, Communist, to Hungary.

It is thought the entire Cabinet
will fall.

Gen. Weyler Hurt in Fall from Ship
PALMA DE MALLOCA, June 26.—
Captain-General Valeriano Weyler, once Military Governor of Cuba and former Spanish War Minister, suffered slight scalp wounds today when he fell overboard during a trip from Alicante to this port. After receiving treatment he went to his farm, Sonorca,
where he will spend the summer.

EXPEDITION SAILS
TO SEEK TRACES OF
'LOST CONTINENT' Ship Equipped to Dredge Atlantic Bottom at a Depth of Three Miles.

NEW YORK, June 26.—An expedition in search of traces of the mythical "lost continent" of Atlantis has sailed for the Azores.
The expedition's ship is equipped with special machinery which is expected to dredge the ocean bottom at a depth of three miles.

This geological material is to be stored in the ship and studied by Harvard geographers and oceanographers in an endeavor to determine from its composition
whether the Americas were once connected with Europe and Africa.

Senate Oil Committee during its

the profits of the Continental Trading Co. The indictment charged that Stewart had testified he knew nothing of the disposition of the bonds by the Continental whereas later he admitted
he had received $759,000 of them.
Stewart's counsel charged that the indictment was the result of "outrageous abuse of court processes
for political purposes" and invoked
because Stewart two weeks ago
was found not guilty of contempt
for having refused to answer questions asked by the Teapot Dome Committee last February.

Frank J. Hogan, Stewart's counsel, demanded that Stewart be released from custody, a statement announced in court tomorrow, saying his client was innocent and sought an immediate hearing. Justice Frederick L. Siddons replied that the court was adjourning for a summer recess and the first available date for the trial was that set.
Stewart was released under $5000
bond.

STEWART TO BE TRIED
FOR PERJURY OCT. 8
Indiana Standard Head Pleads
Not-Guilty in Washington Court.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 26.—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was arraigned in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today on charges of perjury and pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for Oct. 8.

Stewart hurried here from New York where he received word of his indictment and appearing unannounced in court demanded an immediate trial.

"I am sorry I did not get it,"
he said. "The indictment is part of the political propaganda of which I have been a victim."

Stewart gave out a statement in which he declared that the charge had been plainly inspired by the political investigators of the Senate committee who have so long been of the opinion that in a presidential campaign year private rights and personal reputations are of no moment. I am sure the public will understand that this indictment was returned as a result of a star chamber proceeding which I was not heard either personally or by counsel. Only one witness was heard and he was Senator Nye, more prosecutor than witness. Not one word of evidence was received on my side in this matter. I came to Washington at once to meet this new charge and instructed my counsel to seek an immediate trial. I am disappointed that we must wait until October.
I am confident of acquittal."

BISHOP ORDERS
USE OF RITUAL IN NEW PRAYER BOOK
Clergy of Winchester Diocese Directed to Perform Alternative Form of Confirmation.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 26.—A confirmation service which has no ecclesiastical authorization is to be performed in the Winchester Diocese of the Church of England.
The Right Rev. Frank Theodore Woods, Bishop of the diocese, notified the clergy that "the new form of service for confirmation corresponding with the alternative form
contained in the Revised Prayer Book will be used at all future confirmation services" in the diocese.

The Revised Prayer Book twice has been rejected by the House of Commons and sanction of it by Parliament and the King is necessary to give it authority, since it is the order of service of the state church.

During recent debates on the measure in Commons it was practiced that clergymen who desired to make the change would do so without sanction. When the book was rejected the second time, the Archbishop of Canterbury as primate of all England warned supporters not to take rash or irregular action because of disappointment or chagrin at the rejection.

by Prof. Ludwig Quilke of Gersity of peaceful adjustment of German-Polish relations.

Quilke, who was co-winner with Ferdinand Buisson of France of the Nobel peace prize for 1927, was applauded warmly. The German delegation to the conference consisted of a hundred members and was much larger than any of the other nations represented. The members of the Polish Government

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the cardinal principles that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight democracy of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely pleasing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Hotted Public.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A past few years, the Missouri Public Service Commission has misappropriated its power to deprive public utility consumers, individually or collectively of the right of free bargaining.

Theoretically, the straphanger can buy his transportation elsewhere when the State commission authorizes returns on an absurdly inflated valuation. Theoretically, the same man can stop using gas from the only utility which supplies that commodity. Practically in each case he is hogtied.

Theoretically, he can put the skills to a public service body which has not the stamina to resist the blandishments and social pressure of the utility agents. Practically, the mixture of issues in a gubernatorial campaign renders this an impossibility.

Theoretically, the consumer controls the machinery to stop corruption. Practically, he is powerless. Raw bribery is susceptible of law as are other crude forms of selling out the public interest. The refined forms are elusive. You cannot prosecute a public utility for employing unlimited resources to break down the will of a commission composed of country lawyers and politicians by an organized drive of experts, propagandists, professors, merry tipplers and artful flatterers. Nor can you prosecute the commissioners.

Better take chances with bribery in the raw. The people understand hoodlums and know how to fight them. They are tangible.

Let public utilities survive or perish with other business. If they cannot be straight, the public can very well get along with its own projects. The St. Louis waterworks is our only inexpensive, safe, satisfactory and speculator-proof utility.

Measure off what the Public Service Commission has done for the public against what it has done for the utilities and speculators, and you will have the right answer to the question of whether the Public Service Commission should be allowed to live with its present powers or with those powers curtailed or abolished.

R. C. BLAND.

Sunday's Platform Editorial

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HEARTILY congratulate you upon your platform editorial of Sunday. It seemed to me wise as well as excellent, and I hope that the convention will give proper heed to what you and many of your readers think.

J. H. LIONBERGER.

Chauvinism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SINCE the World War there has been developing in the country a type of mental attitude towards national and international questions, which I would call crude and unintelligent chauvinism.

In the United States, the country of Democracy and former shelter of political refugees, following the European countries in their chauvinism that had already resulted in so many wars?

JESSE HOUSER.

What Washington Would Do.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WOULD like to tell H. S. Priest that Washington, Lincoln and other "true blue" statesmen of the past would stand by the Constitution of today for the same reasons that they stood by that of their day, namely, that it was and still is an expression of the supreme will of the people and, as such, change in it must be effected in the way prescribed therein. Constitutional government is the same yesterday, today and forever.

I would also estimate Smith's "modification" and promise of enforcement of the dry law. There are many pretexts for opposition to prohibition, but the real protest is that of the appetite that alcohol creates, and any "modification" will not stop short of unqualified alcoholic content. I believe I'm warranted to make the assertion that none knows this better than the wetta themselves.

A LIFE-LONG DEMOCRAT.

Socialism and the Post-Dispatch.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Post-Dispatch one day prints a leading editorial disclaiming any socialistic proclivities and the next day prints John Macy's review of Bernard Shaw's latest book. We know that the Post-Dispatch is not socialistic; the "treatise" in America is well known and has been made to make it innocuous. But John Macy's article printed in the Post-Dispatch may well have more weight than tons of socialistic propaganda printed by the socialist press if any.

The editor always has his finger on the pulse of the fairly intelligent and most articulate of the people—those who write letters to the editor. And, no doubt, when he sees the apparent total ignorance of 95 per cent of the people in things economic, he feels that he can go very far in putting up the front of liberalism, for that is all it is, just a front.

But, for one, I am glad that the Post-Dispatch keeps Anderson and Reed and Ross and Lloyd George in its pages. It would be terribly dull hereabouts without them. It is the Post-Dispatch which has dignified reactionary as the also rank.

TOM PAXINE.

FOR PRINCIPLES OR NOTHING.

If there was a shadow of doubt of what is the issue uppermost in the public mind, it is dispelled by news reports from Houston on the eve of the opening of the Democratic national convention that the big fight there is over the prohibition plank of the platform.

So important did he think the issue to be, that Senator James A. Reed abandoned his previously expressed convictions and his whole record with regard to Federal prohibition in order to bid for an alliance with the bone-drys and the Ku Kluxers to block Smith's nomination. But apparently his turn did not make a dent in the solidarity of the Smith delegates. It fell flat, with a reaction against Reed. The strength of Gov. Smith, despite his frank avowal that he is against Federal prohibition and stands for the rights of the states and the right of local self-government in determining what shall be done about the liquor question, is evidence of the sentiment of the majority of the delegates to the convention.

If Smith is to be nominated, and that seems assured now, the Democratic convention cannot stand for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act without deserting its principles and stultifying itself, and without putting Smith in a position which would make his candidacy so far as that question is concerned a mockery. It cannot with the slightest pretense of sincerity nominate a man avowedly against Federal prohibition on a platform approving Federal prohibition without standing convicted of hypocrisy and cowardice. Nor can Gov. Smith afford to make the contest on a platform of that kind.

Assuming that Gov. Smith will be nominated, there is only one honorable and sincere course for the convention to take, that is to declare courageously against Federal invasion of the rights of the states and the liberty of the citizens, and against sumptuary laws. That course would demonstrate the sincerity and courage of the party and would make a clear issue with the Republican party on the menacing and intolerable conditions that now exist under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

The Democratic party has been the traditional defender of the fundamental principles of the Constitution. It was founded upon those principles. Its greatest strength and usefulness has come from the support of those principles and their application to the problems of government. It must apply those principles now to every public issue that confronts it, from prohibition to farm relief, from the tariff to honest and economical government. If the party does not stand for its principles it stands for nothing except the spoils of office.

HOLBROOK BLINN.

The death of Holbrook Blinn takes from the stage a gentleman and a first-rate artist. The stage was his world and of that world he was a good citizen. In or out of the theater the play was ever uppermost in his mind; every part that came his way was a subject to be studied, and how well he learned his lesson was evidenced in his portrayals. He was not interested in Broadway banalities, neither did he go to the other extreme; it always was his intention to strike that happy medium of honest, skillful acting.

When the actors' strike of 1919 was called, Blinn resigned from the Actors' Equity Association and joined the Actors' Fidelity League. He did not believe in striking, and rather than go against his conscience he aligned himself with the minority. Of his art St. Louisans have two recent and happy remembrances, "The Bad Man" and his visit of the past season in "The Play's the Thing." Holbrook Blinn loved acting, but it never caught him by the heels. He was the first to raise a restraining hand if anyone in his presence attempted to rate acting above what he deemed its true importance.

KEEPING MR. BORAH QUIET.

It is said in Washington that as a reward for his acquiescence in everything at the Kansas City convention Mr. Borah is to be Mr. Hoover's Secretary of State.

Whether that is true or not, it is likely that some understanding has been reached with the Idaho Senator. Keeping him quiet is one of the major problems of any Republican administration. Mr. Coolidge labored prodigiously in that direction without success. Mr. Borah would go to breakfast at the White House in the morning and at high noon would fork the floor in the Senate to attack almost every foreign policy of the Coolidge regime. He has persistently disagreed with what we are doing in Nicaragua, he was against the big navy program endorsed by the President, and he wanted Russia recognized. His friendly personal relations with Messrs. Coolidge and Kellogg and his open official antagonism to their foreign policies constituted one of the strangest anomalies in the history of American politics.

Apparently there is but one man in the office of Secretary of State with whom Mr. Borah would agree. That is Mr. Borah. If Mr. Hoover has figured that out the world of practical politics can no longer call him stranger.

THE REAL CULPRIT.

That the Federal Trade Commission should actually roll up its sleeves and wade into the power inquiry as though it meant business has been one of the major surprises of the year. As soon as it became clear that the Power Trust was not to be investigated by the merciless Walsh, nearly everyone yawned and proceeded to forget about it. It seemed certain that, since the high-powered lobby of the Power Trust turned heaven and earth to give the inquiry to the Commission, nothing would come of it.

Now that the beans have been spilled all over the place, it becomes pertinent to name the culprit who is responsible. Robert E. Healy, of course, is the man who has done the bean-spilling. He is chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission and no one, that is practically no one, had ever heard of him until he called the first witness many weeks ago. Not for long did he remain X, the unknown quantity. The Power Trust was first astonished, then horrified, as Healy began to expose the most brazen and widespread campaign of propaganda ever known in the United States—and that is, indeed, saying something.

The story of the contamination of college professors and the poisoning of school curricula goes on apace. Senator Walsh could hardly have done a better job than the clever, urbane, implacable Mr. Healy. And who is he? He is a Vermont lawyer, a former judge of the Supreme Court of his state, a man who believes in the old-fashioned notion that a public office is a public trust. And who gave him his job?

This is the crux of the story, for the man who put him there is at bottom responsible for the power trust's weeping and gnashing of teeth. He was appointed by one who above all others would never be suspected of doing anything deliberately prejudicial to Big Business—namely, Mr. Coolidge. He, ironically enough, is the culprit.

STEWART—THEN AND NOW.

Yesterday Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was indicted for perjury as the result of his testimony before the Senate Teapot Dome Committee. Last February Stewart told the committee he had no knowledge that would lead him to believe that any organization or individual had received any of the profits of the Continental Trading Co. Later, in April, Stewart admitted he had received $759,500 in Liberty Bonds from H. S. Osler, president of the Continental Trading Co. Sunday a statement was issued by John D. Rockefeller Jr. in which his efforts to oust Stewart from the Standard Oil Co. are reviewed. It will be remembered that Rockefeller, whose family controls a large proportion of the Indiana company's stock, called upon Stewart to make good his promise to resign when asked. This was on May 9, after Stewart had given his evasive and conflicting testimony at Washington. The Rockefeller statement points out that while Stewart has made no reply to the demand for his resignation, "Mr. Rockefeller has been taking and will continue to take such steps in this matter as appear practicable."

It is difficult to reconcile the Stewart of today with the Stewart of last winter. That Stewart was one of America's captains of industry, rich, respected, even idolized. He cut a swagger figure in Washington when he arrived to testify the first time. Defiant of the Senate, indignant that he should be called upon, he fooled many into thinking that he was the subject of martyrdom. Before the committee he displayed the truculence expected of an honest man accused of shady dealing. When he emerged, he was somewhat of a hero. Telegrams of commiseration poured into his hotel room, and flunkies gathered round to press his hand. It is a different Stewart we see today.

His airy manner of last February has been succeeded by a sour reticence. He no longer poses before reporters as Injured Innocence. Escaping punishment at the hands of one jury, he must now face charges which expose him to the possibility of a two-to-ten-year prison sentence. His boss is clamoring for his resignation. The flunkies and the yes-men look at him askance. Only his attorneys have the hardihood to say that the perjury indictment is "the last word in the outrageous abuse of court processes for political purposes." Everyone knows that is merely the bombast of professional advocates.

CONTROL OF THE SENATE.

The United States Senate was the major objective of the Power Trust in its effort to forestall investigation of its practices or comparison of its prices with those of Government hydro-electric operation.

The correspondence of John B. Sheridan, publicity man for the utilities in Missouri, reveals the close connection with which the power people follow up members of the Senate in their effort to control that body. They wanted to know how to reach Senator Reed of Missouri, and Sheridan dutifully detailed what he considered the best means of reaching the Senator. Sam Lazarus, who had given $50,000 to Reed's campaign in 1922, and who therefore had $50,000 worth of influence with the Senator, had unfortunately died. The Senator has a brother in Iowa who is an outstanding public utility man in that state. Sheridan advised seeing the brother, whose advice, he understood, went further than that of anybody else.

Evidently the effort failed, for Senator Reed voted against the Power Trust whenever he was present. In the principal test of the Trust's strength in the Senate, the vote on the Walsh resolution, he was not present. He did, however, criticize exclusion from the inquiry of the political activities of the power interests and their contributions to campaign funds. He also voted against sending the inquiry to the Federal Trade Commission, and he voted for Government operation of Muscle Shoals.

But Senator Reed, by Sheridan's admission and that of his correspondents, is difficult, and the failure to control him was not the usual luck of these field workers for the Trust. It is a warning to the people. If they want their interest served they will send to the Senate men who are not to be swayed from their duty by the powerful agencies to which their power exposes them. It is a damnable business, comparable in its consequences to actually buying seats in the Senate for public utility men, as Insull sought to do in Illinois.

LOYD GEORGE AND THE PRESS.

It is a matter of regret to learn that Lloyd George will give up his press correspondence and devote himself to the Liberal party.

There is no other European correspondent like him. Certainly no one else writing for the press has had his vast experience, and seldom indeed does any writer anywhere equal the clarity of his expression. It will be a distinct loss to American understanding of European affairs when these no longer have the benefit of the little Welshman's interpretation. His article in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday on the prayer book controversy was a good example of the great service he has rendered to international understanding. That the prayer book issue is difficult has been abundantly proved by the success with which many writers have made it as clear as mud. Not so Lloyd George. He has been chiefly responsible for what America knows about it, as we have come to look to him in the main for much of what we know of most European phenomena. His point of view, which is that of an immensely informed onlooker, has served to illuminate the dark for us when we might otherwise have been left to guess what was going on. Here was a case in which a fraudulent letter actually changed the government of England. It swept MacDonald out and Baldwin in. Nothing comparable to it as a political device has ever been known in our own country, nor could we be sure it was a pure fabrication did we not have the word of Lloyd George for it. After all, he never was a politician of the sort which at last deprives itself of all popular credence.

That sort of public man seems to have been our own invention.

There are many theories of Mr. Coolidge's refusal to run again, but we think we have it. He wanted to fish with worms without stirring up the ethical societies.

WHAT BECAME OF THE REED BOOM.

Al Smith and the Revolt of the Cities.

Ever Since Colonial Days the Conflicting Interests of City and Country Have Been Implicit in Our Political Battles; Up to the Present the City Has Been Worst, but There Are Signs That It Is Now Strong Enough to Throw Off the Domination of the Rural Legislator and the Country Congressman; Al Smith Symbolizes the City Man's Hopes.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

ALFRED E. SMITH is a Catholic. He is, presumably, a wet. He is affiliated with Tammany Hall. Thus the tale of his shortcomings from the point of view of those who oppose him.

The opposition to him is intense, vehement. It is full of bitterness. It seems, sometimes, to transcend reason. Here is an able man, brilliant in some respects, with a long record of capable administration of an office second only to that of the national President. In manner he is simple, straightforward, amiable. Those who meet him almost always succumb to his charm. Yet it is clear that there is a determination in many quarters to regard him as something malevolent. A North Carolina paper the other day referred to him as a rattlesnake. "Emphasis of the Devil" is a frequent epithet.

It is difficult to believe that his wetness accounts for this virulence. Most men, even in the backwoods, know wet men who have neither horns nor hoofs. Most men, likewise, have friends or at least acquaintances who are Catholics and still good citizens. And as for Tammany Hall, every man acquainted with practical politics knows that that ancient political organization differs in no essential particular from the county organization with which he is familiar.

The almost inevitable deduction is that the opposition to Smith has a significance which has not been understood in the public discussion which has raged about his candidacy. Such phrases as "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" are current because they trip trippingly from the tongue and not because they express the real situation. The antipathy which Smith must face embraces all the things which are under discussion. But it is obvious that it must likewise embrace something more profound than any of these.

Perhaps the answer lies in the fact that his opponents see in the debonaire and somewhat humorous figure in the brown derby a symbol of the great change which has come over the United States in the past decade. For it was in that decade that for the first time the United States ceased to be predominantly an agricultural country and became a land in which the majority of the inhabitants are urban. The domination of the farmer is challenged and Smith, the Bowersky, symbolizes the challengers.

But there are more points of friction than ever before. Though the country is now mainly urban and becomes more so with every passing year, the political machinery still favors the farmer. Nearly every large city in the country is grossly under-represented in its State Legislature. Frequently the farmer's vote is worth 10 times that of his city cousin. In one instance within our knowledge it was worth more than 40 times as much. The best efforts of city Congressmen have failed to persuade their rural colleagues to obey the Constitution and give rapidly growing urban communities the representation due them in the House of Representatives.

There is a historical background or some other excuse for the sort of inequality just mentioned. There is no justification other than that growing out of blind prejudice and unreasoning jealousy for more recent manifestations of the rural assumption of divine right. It is as if the country dwellers sensed that their dominion were threatened and, like tottering tyrants in all ages, sought to maintain their power by extreme measures. Leadership in the country has been turned over more and more to the political persons and the demagogues who know to them. Such men have built up organizations like the Ku Klux Klan to blacken the names of their states with their flagging and tar parties and to make unholy war against those occasional honest men, like Byrd in Virginia, Harris in Georgia and Hall in Alabama, who seek to correct pressing evils or drive scoundrels out of office. The archetype of their prejudice is found in the Volstead act, which specifically permits the farmer to make hard cider and wine far beyond his thirstiest needs, but claps into jail the city man who concocts so much as a single brewing of beer. But even this effort somehow seems less mad than the underhanded attempt to stifle the free play of ideas, enforce allegiance to the theological hallucinations of hedge parsons and destroy the validity of those modest props to human dignity embodied in the Bill of Rights.

But just as the countryside occasionally produce men who somehow express the better part of them—Jefferson was such a man and Lincoln was another—so it is quite within the bounds of possibility that in Smith, the city has found its spokesman. If he is chosen he will be the first completely urban product ever to have occupied the White House. He will enter the White House with the outlook of the city man. He will have, however well rationalized, all the city man's prejudices, all his aloofness, all his aversion to snooping and peeping by neighbors and hirelings. He will have the city man's disdain for incompetence, his ingrained belief in the survival of the fittest. His first reaction, and therefore his important reaction, will reflect the city man's feeling that the city is the brick house wherein he was born, the streets in which he was bred and the bustling, eager life which is the only life he knows.

To us, in Baltimore, in New York, in Chicago, in any city you may choose to name, this seems natural and desirable. The countryman is it fraught with every evil. It represents the thing he has always feared, the thing the men who assume to lead him have taught him to hate. Perhaps we have overdrawn the picture. Perhaps in the last analysis the countryman will see that Smith, for all his Catholicism, for all his wetness, for all the hard lacquer with which life in the streets has coated him, remains at bottom a simple, decent human being, without hyena, without hoof, and with no ambition other than that which might be cherished by any other honorable man. But if the countryman comes to regard him in this light, it will be because he has ignored his leadership, put down his prejudices, dispensed his fears and, especially, admitted the right of the cities to a fair voice in the government of the land.

Briefly stated, it is, "Given time for each purchase." When she says, "What another safety razor!" our meek but amiable answer is "Yes." Women do not understand sporting events anyway. When she is second only to us in intelligence, she never can fashion that if the razor is given free with a purchase, it simply is an effort to refuse to take the razor. Appeal to our code of honor were met with a question inquiry as to why a man who has razors wants another. The instant of acquiescence did not fare very well either. It is not only safety razors that worry us, although our beard, as our mind, is of development. Styptic pencils are another angle of the same problem. So are lighters, and celluloid ducks. While the celluloid duck is a novelty, six of them begin to pall on you. We have a niece who likes celluloid ducks. We are pleased she does; we have developed a violent antipathy toward them. We have sufficient styptic pencils on hand to suffice for a job operation, if they use styptic pencils in operating rooms. However, we have the problem. We discovered when a housewife cannot have too many towels. When we travel this summer, we will follow immemorial custom with the towels. But the hotel will get a lot of safety razors in exchange. A man can have many safety razors.

The Literary Bull Market

It is probable that occasional readers of this column may have been taking a more or less lively interest in the stock market during the past boom days that either are or are not drawing to a close. It has been a thrilling spectacle to see the blithe lambs gamboling with the bulls, while the frustrate bears looked on with the slaver of desperation dripping from their noses.

Also, it has been more than a little amusing to see the little boys all over the land playing at the big boys' game and running the market with it in so high-handed a manner for awhile.

That was naughty of the little boys, one clearly understands. They should not have gotten the dangerous idea into their heads that one may achieve the sanctity of wealth in any other way than by humble industry and thrift. They should tell and stamp and save, as Mr. Rockefeller did.

And yet one can understand their grievous moral lapse. No doubt these little boys have been looking about them and wondering a good deal in their childish way. Perhaps in their ignorance it has appeared to them that somehow to acquire is more noble than to produce, or at least a great deal more effective, though the opposite is still taught in certain quarters.

To cleanse one's hands of labor forever—how alluring in our blindness is that hope!

But it is not the moral aspect of the matter that need interest us here. What may well interest us is the lamentable confusion of values that has characterized the popular boom in securities. It has required no economic expert to note from day to day how stocks of relatively little or moderate value have soared to ridiculous price heights, while sound values were consistently overlooked.

In the conspicuous case of Bancroft, rated as sound at its proper moderate valuation, the price was boosted to a point where its yield was barely one per cent, while strong securities, offering as much as seven times that yield, were listed at one-tenth the price—price here being the index of crowd appraisal.

This curious phenomenon is to be explained by the fact that while the vast buying crowd, actuated by a quite intelligible desire for gain, was composed of intelligent individuals, the bidding was not

The Literary Bull Market

It is probable that occasional buyers of this column may have been taking a more or less lively interest in the stock market during the past few days that either are or are not drawing to a close. It has been a thrilling spectacle to see the little lambs gamboling with the bulls, while the frustrated and the frustrated of the market are dripping from their ears. Also, it has been more or less amusing to see the little lambs all over the land playing at the big boys game and running away with it in so high-handed a manner for a while.

That was naughty of the little boys, one clearly understands. They should not have gotten the dangerous idea into their heads that they could achieve the sanctity of wealth in any other way than the humble industry and thrift. They should not have skimped and saved as Mr. Rockefeller did. And yet one can understand their generous moral lapses. No doubt the little boys have been looking about them and wondering a good deal in their childish way. Perhaps in their ignorance it has even appeared to them that some of the big boys are more noble than they, or at least a great deal more effective, though the opposite is still taught in certain quarters.

To cleanse one's hands of labor—how alluring in our modern age is that hope!

But it is not the moral aspect of the matter that need interest us here. What may well interest us is the lamentable confusion of values that has characterized the popular boom in securities. It has resulted in a sort of economic expert to note from day to day how stocks of relatively little or moderate value have soared to ridiculous prices, while sound values were consistently overlooked.

In the conspicuous case of Bancitaly, rated as sound at its proper moderate valuation, the price was boosted to a point where its yield was barely one per cent, while strong securities, offering as much as seven times that yield, were listed at one-tenth the price—price here being the index of crowd approval.

This curious phenomenon is to be explained by the fact that while the vast buying crowd, actuated by a quite intelligible desire for gain, was composed of intelligent individuals, the bidding was not the expression of individual intelligence but of crowd contagion. Not an individual examination of values, but wild, crowd-sweeping rumor did the trick. "Everybody" was buying Bancitaly, it seemed; and it is the principal characteristic of crowds to act on the strange notion that if "everybody" is doing it, it must be right. So powerful was this persuasion, as always in crowds, that even the voices of the experts were unheard and the repeated warnings of Bancitaly officials were without effect. A million intelligent men and women, fused into a mass and surrendering their individualities in the process, may easily become one huge fool.

Most readers will have foreseen the analogy that these remarks are intended to emphasize. There are other fields of value besides the economic; and in every field it will be found that the same truth holds. Whenever the crowd "mentality" gains control in any realm of values, the result is a ridiculous and a dangerous confusion.

For some years now we have been witnessing what may well be described as a popular bull market in literature; and to anyone with anything like a fair knowledge of literary values, the result has been astounding, to put it mildly. Now and then, as sometimes happens, even in a wild bull market, we have seen genuine literature bid high; but in every case of the sort it was to be noted that the crowd caught on, not through sound knowledge of the value involved, but because of a persistent crowd-sweeping rumor—generally contrived by deliberate publicity methods. "Everybody" was buying it!

Far more often we have seen the relatively, or quite, valueless book outrageously boomed, while other works of great beauty and power and universal meaning were "selling" at almost nothing at all. Not the rich and enduring dividend yield in understanding and human sympathy, but the artificially contrived goose-pimple of the money press was the market. And the saddest thing about the spectacle is that so many of the people who make up this crowd are capable of far better judgments as individual men and women.

It is easy enough to understand that if a man buys a stock, that yields nothing, at a ridiculously inflated appraisal, he is likely to suffer for his folly. Literary values are life values, or they are not; and what can we say for those who, surrendering to crowd contagion, bid up the false?

In the face of disconcerting reports in the thermometer and a continuous threat of rain the Garden Theater management goes ahead cheerfully producing a thoroughly professional brand of musical comedy. This week's offering, "Up She Goes" was given its first performance last night and, barring a few minor first night mishaps, was an entertainment of first rate quality in its dancing, music and comedy lines.

"Up She Goes" was fashioned from Frank Craven's play known as "Too Many Cooks." In order to preserve the proper sort of continuity most of the dialogue has to be retained which results in a plot which has much more plausibility and excites much more curiosity than the usual thing of its kind. As practically everybody knows by now, it is concerned with the efforts of a young engaged couple to build a house for themselves despite the well-meaning advice of friends, relatives and passersby.

Miss Vera Meyers played the role of Alice Cook to the obvious satisfaction of all the customers among whom there could be discerned a considerable group who now constitute a regular following for this charming young comedienne. This role is particularly suited to her talents. The songs allotted to her fall well within the capacity of her agreeable but small voice. Opposite her was Jack Squires in the role of Bert Bennett. Mr. Squires held over from last week's production of "Good Morning Dearie," and made a much more favorable impression—at least upon these ears and eyes. Choosing to sing his songs instead of talking them, Mr. Squires dispelled the suspicion that perhaps he didn't have a voice to sing with and unveiled a pleasant baritone.

John Cherry functioned as usual under a 300-pound pressure of energy, and the other regular principals were distributed among Alice Cook's sisters and her cousins and her aunts.

But as far as I am concerned the loud huzzahs and heavy scented

TURNING for the moment to musical comedy in place of light opera, the Municipal Theater last night presented "No. No. Nanette," which, in reality is a fast-moving farce with music. Despite the coolness of the evening, one of the largest opening night crowds of several seasons was on hand and demonstrated plainly enough that comedy is the form of entertainment most desired by the rank and file of suburbanites.

Given warm nights during the remainder of the week, this musical offering by Otto Harbach and Frank Youmans will establish a new record for patronage in the Forest Park amphitheater. It was, in the main, a satisfactory performance through which last night's crowd shivered. True, part of the successes of the musical play has rested upon the dancing of the principals and the chorus and for some unexplained reason the Municipal management has always ignored that form of entertainment. The efforts of Sam Ash to execute a few steps last night were rather painful, and even dainty Miss Dorothy Seeger, who scored heavily in the title role, showed a total lack of familiarity with the art. It was the fast stepping of Ona Munson and Louise Groody, the original Nanettes, which helped to make the piece the whirlwind success that it was. Except for the matter of dancing, however, Miss Seeger's work was the equal of any of the stars who preceded her in the part in the indoor theaters. The chorus, a fine singing organization, did good work in the drills, but when it attempted to dance—well, they are good singers.

To Alice Mackenzie, in the role of Lucille, rather than to Miss Seeger, fell the first honors of the evening. Miss Mackenzie is an actress of ability and charm with a splendid voice and she knows how to put comedy lines over the footlights. This was the first opportunity she has had to show what she could do and she came off with flying colors. Bernice Merason, long a favorite with Municipal audiences in character roles, knows always exactly what those audiences want and she painted the part of Pauline, a comedy slavey with a broad brush in a thoroughly burlesque manner and also scored a pronounced hit.

Mr. Ash, forgetting his dancing, did nicely in the part of Tom Trainor, Nanette's boy friend, and his singing of the popular Tea for Two number with Miss Seeger was very pleasing. Florence Ames and Lee Daly, the company's two comedians, like Miss Merason, reached into burlesque for their laughs—and got them continuously.

Day by Day in Houston

By O. O. McIntyre

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26. WITH a big bug for the Chamber of Commerce, and in a nice gentlemanly way, it is not here, not the blistering heat of the sun-scorched Pampas, but warm summer suit to gaze enviously at the white filmy seersucker creation adorning Maj. Raymond Dickson of Boiling, Tex., sah.

But Houston goes in for hot stuff of all sorts. These, for instance, who loved he-food with a fiery tang find this town right up their street, that is to say—the berries. It is the carnal of the succulent chile con carne, the tangy hamburger and the hot tahnale that is liable to explode in your hand. I'll whistle it's a hot city in more ways than one.

LAST night the town was a little goofy. I had the feeling I had the day Aunt Hef took me to the circus and the wild man jumped at me—all a twist. I just looked at one of the largest opening night crowds of several seasons was on hand and demonstrated plainly enough that comedy is the form of entertainment most desired by the rank and file of suburbanites.

REUNION OF 12TH ENGINEERS

Veterans Will Meet at Barracks Last of This Week.

The third annual reunion of the Twelfth Engineers' Association will be held at Jefferson Barracks Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Ceremonies will be conducted Saturday afternoon at a monument erected to the regiment in Chain of Rocks Park, near which the organization was mobilized in June, 1917. The meeting will close with a banquet at American Annex Saturday night. Delegates from all parts of the country are expected to attend. The Twelfth Engineers were overseas in July, 1917, and were one of the first American regiments under fire in France.

Illinois Mine Owner Dies.

working days and covering a city block opposite convention hall. Here one may receive everything from medical treatment for sunburned tonsils to a needle and thread to save a gallus button. It was the idea incidentally of W. C. Hogg, as well known to New York as he is to Houston.

ONE cannot go a block without flushing upon a bevy of celebrities from far and near. If you care to be rough you could trip up a hand full of United States Senators or a New York dude crossing hotel lobby, and wouldn't that be fun.

CUPPING a shell-like ear today, one hears chiefly talk of Al Smith and the exercises at convention hall will be brief and snappy. But all this is, of course, conjecture. This convention is dynamite and nobody knows whom the boys in the back room will have.

ONE of the thrills of the visit here has been the attachment formed between a little Mexican donkey and myself. It roams the streets carrying a blanket banner and followed me three blocks into a restaurant this morning, and, of course, some lady in passing would say: "The one in front is that New York writer, what's his name?"

And speaking of ladies, it seems they have preserved the Southern accent and the colloquialisms more than the men. Among a group of them chattering in the hall this afternoon, there drifted such phrases as "Sho nuff," "I reckon," "I'll de-lah" and "you all."

EACH one of the hotel rooms here is equipped with one of these huge revolving fans like they used to have to keep the flies off the free lunch. Any one who has never tossed an egg in them has never really lived. Not that we are to start anything in Houston but share the idea among you—with love and kisses.

So far as we can observe from here—daylight saving time, everybody who is to do their stuff on the floor of convention hall has arrived, including the diplomat from Boston who brought along his big buff car driver's overcoat. Grandpa used to say you could always count on Boston, but he would never say for what.

We are nearing the zero hour. Everything is tense and don't I surprised if I telephone you in the middle of the night. It will be because I'm just bursting with news and cannot wait.

NATIONAL CRISIS No. 4780.

Briefly stated, it is, "Given free with each purchase." When she says, "What mother safety razor?" our meek but invaluable answer is "Yes." Women do not understand sporting events anyway. While she is second only to us in intelligence, she never can fathom that if the razor is given free with a purchase, it simply is not worth it to refuse to take the razor. Appeals to our code of honor were met with a curt inquiry as to why a man who has seven razors wants another. The instinct of self-preservation did not fare very well either. It is not only safety razors that worry us, although our beard, as our mind, is of slow development. Styptic pencils are another angle of the same problem. So are clippers, and celluloid ducks. While celluloid duck is a novelty, six of them begin to pall on you. We have a niece who likes celluloid ducks. We are pleased that she does: we have developed a violent antipathy toward them. We have sufficient styptic pencils on hand to suffice for a major operation, if they use styptic pencils in operating rooms. However, we have solved the problem. We discovered when a towel housewife cannot have too many towels. When we travel this summer, we intend to follow immemorial custom with the hotel towels. But the hotel will get a lot of safety razors in exchange. A man can have too many safety razors.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It cannot harm the most delicate system, and is not a habit-forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without gripping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for

NATIONAL AVIATION CORPORATION FORMED

Purpose Is to Stabilize Flying Industry and Support Expansions.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 26.—Formation of the National Aviation Corporation, a financing organization to stabilize the existing aeronautical industry and to support expansions and new developments, was announced today.

The corporation is headed by C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Co., as chairman of the board, and J. C. Willson, as president. Willson is a partner in J. C. Willson & Co., investment bankers, and is a director of two of the airline subsidiaries. About one-fourth of the directors represent leading manufacturers in the industry, while others represent air transport and include capitalists interested in financing aviation enterprises.

Keys explained that while the charter of the concern was broad enough to permit it to engage in almost any aviation activity, it did not intend to control any major aviation enterprise. The company will use its funds by participating in the business of established concerns and by helping to finance new companies as they are organized. To illustrate the scope of the new company's operations, Keys said it was obvious that the air mail service of the country must be extended within a few years to cover virtually every city, instead of the great cities as at present. In this field, alone, he said, the company should play a constructive part; furthermore it would provide support for promising inventions.

The authorized capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of no-par common stock of which 150,000 shares have been subscribed by brokers for public offering at $25.50 a share, beginning today.

Among the directors of the concern are Howard Coffin, chairman of the board of the National Air Transport, Inc.; Carl G. Conway, president and director of the Continental Can Co.; J. Cheever Cowdin, vice president Blair & Co., New York; Chester W. Cuthell, New York lawyer; George W. Davidson, president of the Central Union Trust Co. of New York; Thomas N. E. Sart of Knight, Dyson & Gamble, St. Louis; Sherman W. Fairchild, president of the Fairchild Aviation Corporation; Paul Henderson, vice president of the National Air Transport and Transcontinental Air Transport; Richard W. Hoyt, chairman of the board of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation; Leonard Kennedy, vice president of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation; Charles L. L. Lawrence, president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation; E. O. McDonnell and Grayson Murphy, partners in G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., New York; Walter S. Marvin, partner in Hemphill Noyes & Co.; John J. Mitchell Jr., director of the National Air Transport, Inc.; Earle Hay Reynolds, president of the National Air Transport, Inc.; David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation of America; J. C. # "Smooth skin most important thing for loveliness"

says Clarence Badger, director for PARAMOUNT

"Because smooth skin charms people so, it is a first essential for screen stardom—no make-up can fake it. The super-smooth skin that can defy the merciless revelation of the close-up lights—every successful star possesses it."

SOMEWHERE deep down it thrills you—the tender, flower-like freshness of a smooth, well-cared-for skin.

Audiences grow tense when the close-up brings the star's radiant loveliness near to them.

Motion picture directors know this. That is why they insist on the utter perfection of "studio skin." Because make-up is almost useless under the blazing lights of the close-up, every star must keep her skin exquisite, radiant.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. In Hollywood, there are 433 actresses doing important work, including all stars. 417 of these use this fragrant, white soap—96%!

All the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms. You, too, will love the smoothness it gives your skin!

"Lux Toilet Soap gives my skin that beautiful smoothness I thought only expensive French soaps could give," says RENÉE ADORÉE, dark, exotic Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star. "It certainly is a lovely soap—I do enjoy it."

BILLIE DOVE, beautiful star for First National, says... "A smooth skin is most important to every girl. I have used Lux Toilet Soap and find it delightfully pure and refreshing."

NINE out of ten screen stars use it for smooth skin.

BEBE DANIELS, piquant Paramount star and the distinctive bathroom designed for her loveliness—

"The girl with smooth skin need not fear the relentless eye of the camera. Even the cleverest make-up will not suffice under the searching lens of the close-up. The wonderful lather of Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin smooth and lovely."

Bebe Daniels

JANET GAYNOR, tiny favorite star in Fox films, says... "There's a caressing quality to Lux Toilet Soap that I have never found except in costly French soaps. My skin feels so soft and smooth."

"I used to say 'It is impossible—one cannot find a soap of the luxury of imported soaps in America!' Then I found Lux Toilet Soap. As fine as costly French soap, it feels delicious to the skin and makes mine so wonderfully soft and smooth," says radiant, blonde GRETA NISSEN.

MEXICAN PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED

Derailing Attributed to Insurgents — American Engineer Killed — Bombs Discovered.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, June 26.—Wrecking of a passenger train running from Laredo to Mexico City was attributed to insurgents by rail-road officials today.

Andrew H. Robinson, 60-year-old American engineer who has served the Mexican National Lines for 40 years, was crushed to death when the train was derailed. His body was brought to Mexico City for burial. The fireman was killed also and several passengers injured.

The train usually carries a number of Americans but since these generally travel in the rear coaches it was thought that none of them were injured. Passenger coaches remained on the track, the locomotive, express car and mail car overturning.

Two bombs were planted near the point where the train was derailed to blow up the relief train. One of these exploded prematurely near Aragon before a relief train traveling toward Laredo arrived. The second bomb was discovered by track workers shortly afterwards and removed.

A guard of Federal soldiers accompanying the train deployed at once and this show of force apparently intimidated the wreckers since no attempt was made to attack the train.

Sandino's Brother Leaves U. S.
By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, June 26.—Socrates Sandino, brother of the Nicaraguan irregular leader, with two American detectives, was in Havana yesterday for several hours en route from New York to Mexico City aboard the steamship Havana. The detectives, Sandino said, act as "personal guards." He said his mission into Mexico is "purely commercial."

THE PARIS MODE TODAY

As Seen at the Polo Club and on the Beach.

Special cable by Pierre Le Baux, director of the Paris Fashion Board, and E. Winifred Boulter, associate director.

In the interval of thunderstorms there are many delightful open air events to be enjoyed in Paris. One of the pleasantest is to take tea at the Polo Club at Bagatelle, a charming oasis near Longchamp in the Bois de Boulogne.

Most women wear wraps. There are two types of coats: That with a fur collar so high that the nose just peeps over it, and with fur bands turning down from it at right angles reaching to the waist line. This is a Paquin model and one that is chosen by a great many women. The other is a simple coat, untrimmed and with very small collar, that forms part of an ensemble, often lined with the fabric of which the dress is made.

Last Sunday Comtesse de Gerolles de Sauvigny had a coat of the latter type in a pretty shade of cornflower blue which matched the simple crepe de chine gown she wore trimmed with lines of openwork hand stitching.

Another pretty woman wore Mme. Jenny's chic ensemble, with a coat of navy blue satin woven with white silk polka dots over a white satin gown embroidered with a border of dots in navy blue.

Wide-brimmed hats are beginning to make their appearance, and one of the prettiest was a Leobow model in fine beige oriental straw made with the brim curved slightly down all the way round. It was trimmed with twisted rope of pale satin ribbon that was threaded through the brim on the left side and gathered into a choux that rested on the cheek under the brim.

The people known as fashion "experts" are never content with the mode as it exists, but are always asking themselves what will be worn next. Now, the most of the smartest evening gowns are of chiffon, or tulle, lace or satin, they are asking themselves if this is not the time for the sparkling evening dress to return to popularity. There are signs that it is all ready coming back to favor. At the ball and cotillon given by Baron Maurice de Rothschild in his wonderful palace in the rue Monceau, most of the women wore sparkling gowns. Vicomtesse Henri de Jassé was in pale pink with a taint of iridescent beads.

The Princess de Belmont was wearing a charming chiffon gown in lavender mauve with a long flowing line.

Lady Abby wore a molynous gown of white georgette, made with long pointed panels dipping at the back, and one of those new handkerchief swathed belts.

There was a good deal of gold. Lady Granard in gold and white lace brought her debutante daughter in pale blue.

Mrs. Edwin Montagu wore a Louise Boulanger gown of gold lame made with long square panels, those at the back reaching nearly to the ground.

Lady Mendi (Elsie de Wolfe) wore the Louise Boulanger gown in gleaming gold tissue that is trimmed with glistening pink ostrich feathers on the long side of the panels and also on the swathed belt.

Comtesse de Sangro wore a very new Louise Boulanger gown that is made entirely of crepe de chine ribbon. The corsage consists of two horizontal rows of the ribbon arranged in tiers to give a double boileri effect. The skirt is all in caudrige pleated panels, shorter in front, and nearly reaching to the ground in back, where they alternate with looped ends. The model is in two shades of pale green. Comtesse de Sangro had it copied in Thibide.

While accessories in Paris are inconspicuous and reduced to a minimum, those for the seaside are various and amusing. In Paris the main idea is that your accessories should so form a part of the ensemble, that they almost escape notice. As a compensation, there are all kinds of attractive "frivolities" that now form an essential part of the seaside wardrobe which most women are now preparing.

The beach outfit has become so complicated that it almost requires a trunk for itself. Mary Nowitsky has designed all kinds of accessories to accompany her delightful bathing suits and beach pajamas. There are rugs on which to lounge for the sun bath on the sands.

These are made of thick bath towel in a variety of lovely colorings encrusted with futuristic designs that harmonize with that of the bathing dress or its wrap.

For the woman who wants a whole corner of the beach to herself Mary Nowitsky has designed a kind of rooftop tent or enclosure screen, painted with tropical trees and flowers. This is held in place by two huge cushions filled with sand, and shaped like the animals one reads about in old fairy tales. Something to keep the children amused.

Then, for those who intend to make a day of their sun and sea bathing, Nowitsky has invented the cleverest folding tables. These are made of canvas on light wooden frames, and in each corner is a square pocket fastened with steel runners. The pockets contain bridge cards and markers, a book, one's beauty outfit, a flask, sandwiches—in fact, all the comforts that the most exacting could require.

Many houses are showing shades of printed silk or cretonne to accompany beach pajamas or made to match the abbreviated coat that is now all that is considered necessary to slip on over the bathing suit.

Beach shoes are charming and varied in design. Some women have them made in linen in two shades matching the colors of their bathing costumes. Others are in water-proof crepe de chine, also in lovely colors. Some prefer the practical rubber slipper that can be worn during the swim, but these, too, are made in all manner of exquisite shades.

There are rubber bracelets and earrings for those women who mean to make a really picturesque appearance. All kinds of grotesque animals in colored rubbers are shown. These take the place of the ubiquitous pet dog when he declines to spoil his elaborate toilette by taking a plunge in the ocean.

Bathing caps are pretty and fanciful, usually made to match the costume with which they are to be worn, though the majority of women prefer either a water-proof satin or a printed crepe de chine handkerchief knotted around the head, or dispense with a cap altogether in these days of permanent waving.

THE COOKING CLASS

By Nancy Dorris.

FRIENDLY FISH CHOWDER.

AS THE vacation period will soon be upon us, the request for a friendly fish chowder, by the way, is one that may be prepared with a grand gesture from the fish at hand, whether it be the fresh caught varieties from cold mountain stream, lake or ocean, the old familiar in glass or can or the dried and salted.

Wherever vacation takes one, the desire for a good fish chowder is likely to overtake the vacationist. After a dip in whatever water abounds, nothing seems quite so invigorating as a generous bowl of savory chowder and plenty of pilot crackers.

For six hungry vacationists this recipe is bound to win:

FISH CHOWDER
SIMPLE (6)

Fourth pound sliced salt pork, or five tablespoons butter or drippings.
Three small or medium onions.
Three pounds fresh fish.
Tablespoon salt.
Tablespoon pepper.
Six potatoes, cubed.
Five cups hot water.
Four cups hot milk.
Six pilot crackers.

FRESH haddock is good in chowder, although any fish that holds well does nicely. A can of salmon or tuna may be preferred or some freshened salt fish. The addition of a cup or so of stewed corn is liked with the salmon chowder.

The vacation culinary kit should be the simplest. A chowder kettle, knife, tablespoon, teaspoon, measuring cup, large spoon.

LET'S suppose we have fresh fish for chowder. First, we'll place the sliced salt pork or butter or drippings into the chowder kettle. Then we'll peel and slice the onions and saute them in the fat until brown. Meantime, the potatoes are peeled and cubed and the fish, cut into small pieces, rubbed well with salt and pepper. Arrange the potatoes and fish in the chowder kettle in alternate layers and cover gently with the hot water. Bring to a boil and then simmer until both potatoes and fish are tender. This should take 25 to 30 minutes, depending upon the size of the potato cubes.

When the chowder seems done, add the milk which has been heated a minute. Let the chowder heat through, then taste. And what seasoning seems necessary. Pour at once over broken pilot crackers into hot soup bowls.

Women of China
Stick to Hairpins

THE refusal of Chinese peasant women to discard the long, shuttle-like hair ornaments they and their fore-mothers have worn for centuries has virtually made a joke so far of an edict of the Nationalist authorities.

Months ago it was decreed that these hairpins must go. Various excuses for the edict were given, but the reason is generally believed to be fear that the peasants might use these ornaments as weapons.

The women compromised to the extent of removing their hairpins when they entered the city walls, but in the fields outside the ban was ignored. Hoping that persuasion might prevail, the authorities sent an orator out to address meetings of peasant women. At the close of his harangues an expression of opinion was asked of the audience. At one village the women answered:

"This is a small matter. We leave us to dress our hair as we wish? You men drive out the edicts and deal with foreign affairs."

Use Powder and Rouge
if you wish, but...

You must remove them correctly

Rhinoceros, enlarged pores, blackheads all result from cosmetics not properly removed. Retain that lovely girlhood skin by cleansing daily with this treatment of palm and olive oils.

NEVER let powder or rouge, or the day's accumulation of dirt, clog the pores over night. That will ruin the loveliest skin.

Instead remove them with Palmolive—the soap made from the priceless beauty oils of palm and olive for the sole purpose of protecting lovely skin.

The latter of these gentle oils penetrate and cleanse like nothing else will do. Here is how to use them to keep skins gloriously fresh, soft and young looking. It is the world's most famous treatment in being naturally lovely. With your two hands massage the face gently with Palmolive. Let its balmic lather of olive and palm oils enter and cleanse the pores. Rinse with warm water; then with cold; then pat, do not rub, dry. A dab of cold cream is good, but that is all. Today get Palmolive—10¢ a cake, everywhere. The Palmolive-Peet Company, Chicago, Ill.

THE WAY
A WOMAN

—OF—

—By—

Marguerite Moores Marshall

JUNE AND THE WOMAN.

WHEN, if ever, come perfect days? sang the American poet of all the blue-and-gold days that ever were—

and to judge from June's behavior (there's a hope that the month does not play false, by the time a piece gets printed)—

the month post loved as "the old time weather"

over lane and wall.

It is, of all others, the month that belongs to women.

belongs to the "sweet girl graduates," the slim, white-froeked, charming creatures who are youth and loveliness, and delight in a million homes,

so go forth to meet life so bravely and benignly

that even life ought to be kind to them for a while—

if it isn't, at least today's daughters

have courage, knowledge, candor, honesty

to help them through disappointments with jobs and with men.

belongs to those other girls, not yet graduates, who face examinations—

the lions in the path of so many of the feminine young.

and they haven't—thank heaven—the average boy's careless and insolent frivolity

but work in school and college, our girl-children, they're working and worrying and writing, these exquisite June days.

English and chemistry and human physiology—

the blue-and-gold weather mocks them with daisies and buttercups in deep green meadows.

While they toil at desks, with examination bluebooks, most of them will wish through with better marks than they hope for—

scientific, intelligent work does count—

and then, what a glory and delight are the latter June days,

some again, perhaps in the flower-spangled country.

beside the gentian-colored ocean—

the home-coming girls make June another's month.

of course it's the month for brides—

happy-eyed, pink-cheeked, thrillingly happy young women who find it right and natural that Nature should be adorning their emotional coming-of-age with roses and lilies-of-the-valley and flowered fields.

With soft, sweet airs and a honey-moon moon—

and life, despite the cynics and the divorce statistics, will continue to hold beauty

for June brides who love.

Really, for many and many a New York woman—

if she is tied to desk or kitchen for week days—

she means that she can and will run away for week-ends—

and here's wishing her the delight of the simple, beautiful, happy June things.

such as we are enjoying at our beach:

the early morning walk along the tide rim,

the cobalt sea laughing, under tickling breezes, into white foam flashes,

the clean white sand firm under foot.

With a warm sun on one's shoulders—

quick noonday plunge into waves that are cool but not TOO cool for a healthy human being.

through whose veins a rush of tingling salt water sends quick currents of electricity.

It sends to lips a laugh of the pure joy of life:

drawn hour of basking under a sun that warms without burning.

With "the blue-bee" the little fisher huts perpetually teasing one's eyes from an open page—

even for the reading woman, a sun-splashed sea—or, for that matter, a curve of shadowy peaks—

somehow makes most printed words irrelevant.

Evening sea, rose-radiant with sunset—

an hour later, rowing and sparkling in a full moon path of glory—

you know the gold moon glitter in the dark inner curve of a wave.

Not as it lifts to break?

the homely, ever-summer-recurrent delights of life at the beach, chowder made from sea clams picked up on the sandbar, at low tide.

fish cooked an hour after the skipper brings them home from the bay.

lim-legged, silver-gray snip paddling at the edge of the moon's tidal creek.

DICK G. AND M. E. P.—To remove varnish and paint, and give the floor a new finish, the following is recommended: Remove the old finish with a good solvent. Then bleach the floor with hot oxalic acid solution, and wash with a brush. Some places which were badly soiled may have a better appearance and this color may be taken out by the proper use of oxalic acid solution. Use it with a brush near the floor, and wash frequently. The water is not to be used if the latter gets into the floor, for then the floor is burned by the solution, and this must be avoided. Rinse the floor with water, and let dry. It is in damp weather. Rub any rough spots with sandpaper. The application is the filler. It closes up the pores of the wood, and also determines the color of the floor will have.

Inoculation for Rose Fever
(U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE)

SPRING breezes are carrying pollen to the sensitive nasal membranes of the vast host of rose fever and hay fever sufferers. Although the so-called "remedies" are apparently almost as numerous as the victims, medical science has made admittedly slow progress in combating this rather mysterious malady.

About 90 per cent of the cases of hay fever are caused by the pollen, or dust, of various weeds and plants. The springtime symptoms, frequently called rose fever, are due to the early grasses which pollinate from about May 15 to July 15. These pollen are very light and often are carried a distance of several miles in the atmosphere.

While no completely efficacious remedy has been discovered, the medical profession has made some progress in immunizing sufferers. The most effective treatment to date is the inoculation of patients with extracts of the pollen to which they are susceptible. A large majority of those so treated are benefited, and a considerable number, perhaps 25 per cent, are relieved. The patient is advised to go to a physician for preventive treatment approximately two or three months before the symptoms usually begin. It is necessary that a series of inoculations, extending over a period of approximately two months, be completed not less than two weeks before the symptoms usually occur. This preventive method is without danger if administered by a competent physician and it does not cause the patient to lose time from work. The patient is advised to avoid strenuous exercises such as tennis and baseball because they induce vigorous breathing, increasing the dose of pollen inhaled. The sleeping room should be closed during the day to exclude pollen-laden air. The window may be opened at night, as the dampness of evening air and the lessened breeze usually prevent much circulation of pollen. Amber glasses sometimes afford relief from distressing eye symptoms.

PATROLMAN ACCUSED BY YOUNG GIRL KILLS SELF

Webster Calvin, 28, Fires Bullet Into Head When Shown Charges in Inspector's Office.

ON LIQUOR PARTY WHEN IN UNIFORM

Companion Returned Home Intoxicated Last Night - Dead Man Survived by Widow and Children.

Confronted with the charge that while in uniform last night he had obtained whisky at two saloons and caused a 15-year-old girl to become intoxicated, Patrolman Webster Calvin, 28 years old, attached to the Mounted District, shot himself in the head with his service revolver at 12:30 p. m. today in an anteroom of Inspector Walton's office at Police Headquarters. He died a few minutes later at City Hospital.

He had been ordered to appear before Inspector Walton in the latter's private office on the third floor at Headquarters to explain his conduct. Accompanied by Sgt. Oliver Kinsey, assistant to the inspector, Patrolman Calvin went in to see the inspector.

The girl's statement, shown to Calvin by Inspector Walton, set forth that she and her woman friend went out with the patrolman and a man named George Hudson in Calvin's car, after a meeting at Forest Park Highlands. They drove out Manchester road and Calvin took the girl and Hudson to two saloons, obtaining a pint of whisky at one place and two pints at another. They returned to Forest Park and started drinking as they drove about the park. Calvin took the girl and Hudson home. She became ill when she entered the house and her landlady, discovering her condition, complained to Capt. White of the Mounted District against Calvin.

"Is this true?" Inspector Walton asked the officer.

"Well, part of it is true," Patrolman Calvin replied. "But I didn't get as much whisky as she says."

Inspector Walton directed Sgt. Kinsey to take the patrolman into the next office, where he was to make out a report stating his version of the affair.

The two officers stepped out together. When just inside the door of the next room, Patrolman Calvin drew his service revolver and shot himself behind the right ear. He slumped to the floor unconscious.

Prior to the incident of last night, Patrolman Calvin had a good police record. He joined the force Sept. 10, 1925, and was made a patrolman March 12, 1926, and attached to the Mounted District. He resided at 5769 Theodore avenue with his wife and two children.

SMITH UNMOVED BY UPROAR OVER RELIGIOUS REFERENCE

Laughs, However, When Correspondent Likens Boards in Hall to Methodist Camp Meeting.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 27.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, listened with immobile face today to radio accounts of the Democratic National Convention uproar over mention of religious liberty.

The Governor was not listening when Senator Robinson interpolated in a prepared speech the Jeffersonian quotation that started the demonstration, but after adjournment he stood beside his radio while several correspondents related the details.

When one of the correspondents, after telling what he thought would be the effect of the injection of the religious note on the prospects of the Catholic Governor of New York, likened the small of the new pine boards of the Convention hall to that of a Methodist camp meeting, the Governor threw back his head and laughed.
